Great Britain Brings Trade Treaty With Canada Into Force

House of Lords Gives Third Reading to Bill Sent Over From Commons and Measure Placed Before King For Signing

Other Pacts Also Are Completed

London, Nov. 15.—Third reading was given by the House of Lords late this afternoon to the government's bill implementing the agreements made at the Imperial Conference at Ottawa. There was no discussion.

Thus the last parliamentary step in Great Britain toward putting the pact signed at Ottawa into effect was completed and only signing by the King was required to finish the procedure.

It was anticipated royal assent would be given immediately.

The bill passed through all stages of Parliament in three days short of one month. Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, commenced the debate October 18, and the debate which ensued bristled with attacks and counter-attacks. Labor and free trade Liberal members proclaimed their intention of abolishing the legislation as soon as they came into power.

Despite heated attacks, however, the government's bill was at no time in a precarious position. On every division an overwhelming government majority was rolled up.

Customs preferences granted the dominions under the Tariff Act of last autumn had expired at midnight. It was expiration of these preferences that prompted the government to rush the agreement measure through both Houses in the hope it would be in force by the time provisions of the Tariff Act became ineffective.

TEXTILE DISCUSSION

Manchester, Eng., Nov. 15.—The Manchester Chamber of Commerce is joining other cotton trade organizations in making representations to the Canadian Tariff Board concerning the Ottawa agreement and their resultant tariffs on the cotton trade.

The Manchester chamber believes reductions in the Canadian tariff already announced are unlikely to enable British cotton, artificial silk and textile exporters appreciably to increase their trade. The chamber emphasizes the importance of the earliest possible removal of the exchange rates, dumping duty and other additional taxes and to replace them all by one single straight-forward tariff for each class of goods. The chamber also hoped a new Anglo-Russian trade agreement will soon replace that which will expire shortly.

TORCH SINGER FREE OF CHARGE

Mrs. Smith Reynolds and A. Walker Told Murder Accusation Dropped in N. Carolina

Winston-Salem, N.C., Nov. 15.—The murder charge which had been hanging over the head of Libby Holman Reynolds, one-time coast of Broadway, was dropped by the state of North Carolina here to-day.

Solicitor Carlisle Higgins went before Judge A. M. Slack in the Forsyth County Superior Court and asked that a nolle prosequi be entered in the case charging Libby and Ab Walker of Winston-Salem with slaying young Smith Reynolds, her husband, last July.

Higgins based his request on the grounds of insufficient evidence. Judge Slack concurred and at 12:30 p.m. directed the motion be formally recorded.

The husband of the "torch singer" was shot to death at his home last July. Walker, as well as Mrs. Reynolds, was there at the time.

JUDGE MAY BRING SUIT

L. St. G. Stubbs of Winnipeg Asks Minister of Justice to Explain His Action

In Letter to Ottawa He Criticizes Manitoba Attorney-General's Course

Winnipeg, Nov. 15.—Intimation of court proceedings, if a law can be found under which they could be instituted, and a demand that Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, give an explanation of his "official conduct," are contained in a letter sent to Ottawa by Judge L. St. G. Stubbs of the County Court of Winnipeg.

In the letter addressed to the Minister of Justice, Judge Stubbs charges Hon. W. J. Major, Attorney-General of Manitoba with attempting to oust him from office, and declares Mr. Guthrie has "tumbled" over himself "to assist him in doing it."

The country judge faces an inquiry into his judicial conduct early in the new year, when Mr. Justice Frank Ford of the Supreme Court of Alberta will open the investigation here.

Just released to the press, the letter was mailed to Mr. Guthrie November 12, and in it Judge Stubbs said:

"The conduct of the Attorney-General of this province (Hon. W. J. Major), combined with yours as Minister of Justice, the supposed fountain of justice in your respective spheres, in persecuting and prosecuting me, constitute the severest and the most subversive blow ever struck at the rights of the judiciary in Canada."

Judge Stubbs intimated he was considering the possibility of court proceedings by declaring: "For ordinary malicious prosecution the law gives a remedy. I do not know whether any redress is available to a judge for malicious prosecution by an Attorney-General and Minister of Justice. I do not know."

WEEK'S DELAY IN CALGARY TRIAL

Calgary, Nov. 15.—Boyd Hammond, fifty-three-year-old Calgary resident, was remanded for one week when he appeared in court to-day, charged with obtaining $50,000 by false pretences, and following an unsuccessful eight months' fight against extradition was finally returned to Calgary to stand trial.

It is alleged Hammond secured the money from the Royal Oil Company, Calgary, in January, 1930, by representing himself as a United States oil equipment company representative. He agreed to build a refinery for the Royal Oil Company in Turner Valley, obtaining the $50,000 in advance "to protect" his company, it is charged.

SOVIET EX-ARMY HEAD AT LAST LEAVES TURKEY

LEON TROTSKY

Associated Press
Istanbul, Turkey, Nov. 15.—Leon Trotsky, who was expelled from Russia for his opposition to Joseph Stalin, left yesterday evening for Marseilles on the way to Copenhagen, it was learned to-day.

He was accompanied by his secretary, his wife and his daughter. He intends to spend at least a week in Copenhagen, where he is to deliver a lecture at the university.

The Danish government has given him a three months' visa, which may be extended for three months, but Trotsky will have to come back here when that period has expired.

London, Nov. 15.—A Reuters dispatch from Istanbul, Turkey, to-day said Leon Trotsky and his family had left for Copenhagen, Denmark, aboard the Italian steamer Praga. The Praga was voyaging via Marseilles. Extraordinary precautions were taken to ensure that Trotsky's departure should be kept secret.

Leon Trotsky was expelled from Russia a few years ago by the Soviet strong man, Joseph Stalin, for leading the right wing opposition. Subsequently Trotsky was ordered banished for all time.

The Turkish government permitted him to live on Prinkipo island in the Sea of Marmara. Recently there have been reports his health was bad and he wished to go to some European resort to recuperate.

MIGHT REOPEN ISLAND SMELTER

Government Looks Into Possibility of Ladysmith Plant Taking Britannia Ore

Bonus of Money From Treasury Would Be Necessary to Rebuild and Modernize It

Possibility of reopening the Ladysmith smelter to handle the copper ore from the Britannia mines on Howe Sound so as to enable those mines to come in under the British preference and continue operating, was under discussion by members of the government at the Parliament Buildings to-day.

It was stated the plant would require considerable rebuilding and modernizing for which a large government grant would be required.

The smelter operated in the early part of the century for a short time, but has been closed down since. Plans for its reopening three years ago by a syndicate headed by H. B. Thomson and Herbert Carmichael, were postponed.

Under the agreement resulting from the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa, Canadian copper to get the British preference of 4 cents a pound must be smelted in Canada, although it can be sent in bond like British African copper to United States plants for refining. Copper ores from the Britannia mines, which until recently were the largest producer in the British Empire with a yearly output of 35,000,000 pounds, have been smelted in bond at Tacoma, then sent on to New Jersey for refining before being shipped to the English market. Under the Ottawa Conference agreement the smelting must be done in Canada. As there are no smelting facilities on the coast of the B.C. Coast, a complete close-down of the Britannia operations affecting 2,000 persons is now imminent.

Use of the Granby smelter at Anyon for the Britannia ores is also under consideration. Costly changes in the Granby smelter and in its processes would be necessary, it was explained, but even then the costs of smelting would be considerably higher than the costs under the Tacoma arrangements which has been in operation for years.

CITY SURE TO APPEAL

Judge's Decision on Assessment Case May Have Far-reaching Effect

Hits at Whole Basis of Assessment in Victoria and B.C. Cities

Owing to the far-reaching possibilities of the decision handed down in the Supreme Court this morning on an assessment appeal on St. Louis College, the City Council is practically certain to take the case to the Court of Appeal.

Mayor Leeming, after learning of the decision in which the assessment had been cut from $50,000 to $25,000, declared he would recommend to the council next week that an appeal be taken.

"If this decision were to stand, it would be a direct blow at the city's whole system of assessment and drastic revision would become necessary immediately," he declared.

City officials who watched the case believed the decision was one which will affect assessments all over British Columbia, if it is not reversed in other courts.

FRENCH ARMS PLAN IS WELL RECEIVED

Chief Geneva Comment Is to Effect Disarmament Proposals Are Tremendously Complex

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 15.—The French proposals for achieving disarmament and security, presented yesterday to the World Disarmament Conference Bureau, have been generally received with a great deal of goodwill, but the plan is tremendously complex.

Resumption of the Disarmament Conference with all powers represented is considered an essential preliminary to the success of the disarmament undertaking. When Baron von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, comes here for the League of Nations Council meeting Monday of next week strenuous efforts will be made by representatives of the other great powers to reach some agreement on the issue of German equality.

The Italians have informally expressed a degree of scepticism over the feasibility of some of the French proposals, notably that for the creation of an international army under the control of the League, and that for the maintenance of war material stocks under League control.

Among the Germans, and in other quarters also, there is a tendency to regard the French plan as a (Turn to Page 2, Col. 4)

"Save Your Ammunition For Court of Appeal," Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald Tells H. A. Maclean, K.C., in Refusing to Hear Further Argument

St. Louis College Assessment $25,000

Assessment for municipal taxation on the new St. Louis College, Roman Catholic parochial school on Pandora Avenue, operated by the Christian Brothers, was cut in half by Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald of the Supreme Court in a judgment delivered unexpectedly to-day, bringing to a sudden close the hearing which was started last week, when C. H. O'Halloran, counsel for the Bishop of Victoria, carried to the courts an appeal against the $50,000 assessment set by the court of revision.

Evidence admitted by both sides during the hearing was that the building erected during the last year at a cost of $58,000 had been assessed this year by the city assessor at $58,000, but the October court of revision had cut this to $50,000.

Mr. O'Halloran, when the case was resumed this morning, launched into his legal argument. After he had been speaking for a short time, the justice intimated he had heard enough of the school case and wanted to hear the city's side presented by H. A. Maclean, K.C.

Mr. Maclean began his argument to uphold City Assessor George Oke's stand that as the bishop had paid $58,000 for the new school building within the last year, the city's valuation was fair. This position he stated in reply to the evidence of Thomas McPherson, who testified for Mr. O'Halloran that the building was worth, for assessment only what it could be worth on a commercial basis if it had to earn rent as an apartment house, or garage.

Mr. Maclean had only got into his argument, when the justice cut him off, and announced he had decided to reduce the assessment to $25,000. He declared he had no faith in argument as long as Section 212 of the Municipal Act on assessment remained as it was.

"On that basis you might reduce all the assessments in the city of Victoria," Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald declared.

The justice replied that such a result might well be, and referred to what he had done in the Bell-Young case in Vancouver.

Refusing to hear any further argument from Mr. Maclean, the justice advised him "to save your ammunition for the Court of Appeal."

Mr. Maclean protested vigorously, and intimated he would take it to the Court of Appeal, but the justice ordered the next case called.

Two Mice Cause $3,254 Damage

Fire Loss Almost As Great As That of Children Who Played With Matches in B.C. and Started Blazes.

The bright-eyed little domestic mouse whose depredations are generally confined to chewing up the gum in books or making incursions on the cheese is not always as harmless as he appears. Sometimes he becomes important enough to make a place for himself in government records.

Two of them alone last year did damage to the extent of $3,254. The information is contained in the report of the B.C. Fire Marshal. The mice were playing with matches and the total damage they did was almost as great as that of thirty-two children, also playing with matches, who started fires which caused damage amounting to $4,522.

Of the total of 2,690 fires last year, smokers' carelessness was responsible for the greatest number, 513, with the damage set at $55,764. Forty-seven incendiary blazes made the great damage total of $104,890.

Defective chimneys, exposure, sparks and stove pipe were other heavy contributors to the total fire loss. Sixteen fires started by fire-crackers caused a loss of over $7,000.

HIGH TARIFFS ARE ENFORCED

Irish Free State Goods Meet Big Barrier at Border of Great Britain

London, Nov. 15.—Expiration of Imperial preferences granted the Dominions under the Tariff Act of 1930, autumn to-day placed on imports of goods from the Irish Free State duties ranging from 10 per cent in the case of manufactured articles to 50 per cent in the case of raw materials.

From the stroke of midnight the new duties became effective and, as far as trade relations between it and the United Kingdom were concerned, the Free State became a foreign country. Its goods became subject to the general 10 per cent tariff of the United Kingdom, in addition to special duties imposed on some farm products by which Great Britain hopes to recoup the amount of land annuities which it has refused to pay the Bank of England.

PREMIER'S WORDS ARE CRITICIZED

McGill Professor Says Bennett Classifies Socialists and Communists Together

Montreal, Nov. 15.—Professor F. R. Scott of McGill University to-day issued the following statement in connection with reports of an address he delivered in Ottawa Sunday night.

"The Canadian Press dispatch of November 14 quotes me as having said that Mr. Bennett asked the Canadian people to put an iron heel on Communism, and as having criticized him for that statement."

"The remark Mr. Bennett was reported to have made to the Ontario Conservative Association in Toronto on November 9, and on which I took issue with him, was that Socialists and Communists were spreading their ideas in Canada and he added, 'We ask every true Canadian to see the iron heel of ruthlessness against a thing of that kind.' The point which I made in my lecture on 'Freedom of Speech' before the Ottawa, Dominion Forces Chapter, was that Mr. Bennett had totally failed to distinguish between Socialism and Communism. Communism may be unlawful, but Socialism is perfectly lawful in Canada to-day. The statement of the Prime Minister creates an entirely false impression in the mind of the public by making both parties appear illegal. It is thus a serious attack on the undoubted right of the Socialist to propagate his ideas. For this reason I did not think it should pass unchallenged."

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Hon. M. A. Macpherson, Attorney-General and Provincial Treasurer of Saskatchewan, and Hon. Ewen Macpherson, Provincial Treasurer of Manitoba, arrived in Ottawa to-day and conferred with Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture and Health of Alberta.

Later in the day the representatives of the three prairie provinces met Hon. W. A. Gordon, Dominion Minister of Labor, and discussed relief matters.

Vancouver, Nov. 15.—Held up by two men at Dunsmuir and Homer Streets at 1:30 o'clock this morning, Roy Scott, East Hastings, refused to submit to a search and fled. One of the men fired a shot at him as he escaped, he reported to police.

ST. LAWRENCE PLAN OPPOSED

Washington, Nov. 15.—Representatives of United States railroad interests to-day re-emphasized before a Senate sub-committee opposition to the St. Lawrence waterway treaty between Canada and the United States.

Fred N. Oliver, general counsel of the Security Owners' Association, composed of owners of railroad securities, said the project would further endanger investments in United States railroads "already threatened by adverse conditions."

A foreign relations sub-committee, headed by Senator W. E. Borah, Republican, Idaho, began hearing on the St. Lawrence pact yesterday.

Oliver said "the added facilities proposed are wholly unnecessary and even wasteful from a public point of view and no public good will be derived therefrom."

Belgium Joins In City Election BATTLE OPENS

Andros Says Mayor Leeming Lacks Courage in Civic Affairs

Many Candidates Address Big Meeting at South Park School

Opening his campaign for the mayoralty in an address at the South Park School yesterday evening, E. B. Andros told an audience of 200 men and women that he elected, he would establish a policy of limiting civic expenditures to an amount first ascertained to be all the citizens were able to afford. Mr. Andros offered a platform of reduction, no increase in the taxation of improvements, higher charges to Sanic and Oak Bay for water, sub-sidies to the Public Works Bureau, and a referendum and no more bond issues.

A. I. Kirkpatrick was chairman of the meeting. Seven of the eight candidates for the City Council seats who spoke supported the platform offered by Mr. Andros. F. Higgins, K.C., also spoke, and suggested policies as spokesman for the Victoria Ratepayers' Association.

When introducing Mr. Andros, the chairman commented, "He will be no more to put Mr. Andros on the mayor's chair unless you send aldermen to support him in the council. He has to have like alderman Kirkpatrick. He appears to have been passing the buck. If you want bond sales at 82 cents on the dollar; if you want things to continue as they are, all right, vote Leeming, but if you want a change vote for me," Mr. Andros said.

The assessment of the property was based by the city assessor on the cost of the building, which was in the neighborhood of $80,000. The appealants against the Court of Revision's ruling argued that the building did not have a value of $80,000 on the open market.

The number of houses destroyed, including those burned, totaled 1,637, and cost seriously damaged, a total of 4,413, according to Home Office figures.

The typhoon zone included the prefectures of Tokyo, Chiba, Kanagawa, and Saitama. The typhoon zone included the prefectures of Tokyo, Chiba, Kanagawa, and Saitama. The typhoon zone included the prefectures of Tokyo, Chiba, Kanagawa, and Saitama.

AGAINST LOW SALARY CUTS

The candidate opposed cutting salaries lower than $150 monthly. He considered many unnecessary expenses existed in the City Hall. The city engineer's department was criticized, the engineer being accused of drawing three salaries in addition to an annual allowance of $800 for an old car. Two salaries and car cost the city $8,000 a year. He also charged that the city advertised for one man at a salary of $3,000 the police would have to be called out to keep back the rush of applicants.

The land department salaries cost $9,750 and could be replaced in efficiency by a single nail in an office nail on which to hang a price list of the city.

"We spent $5,500 on motor cars during the year. Nearly every man in the city hall who has an old car gets a new one every two or three times over each year. Let them walk, they are hard now, when people are losing their homes because of taxes," Mr. Andros protested.

The prospect of an increase in the percentage of improvements subject to taxation was alarming, the candidate considered. The system of lessening taxation on down-town business property, which has been a good thing for poor men's homes was devised by the Real Estate Board, he asserted.

"Does this city want to be run by the United Fruit, the Borden and the Publicity Bureau? If you vote Leeming, you'll get seventy-five per cent improvement taxation as sure as day after night. And you'll deserve it," Mr. Andros declared.

AIRPORT IN TWO YEARS

The Publicity Bureau grant should be referred to the taxpayers, there should be no more bond issues for any purpose and persistence with the airport at Gordon Head was an "insult" to ratepayers, who have been defeated the project, the speaker said.

"But I am going to tell you that within two years you are going to buy airport land, they will have spent so much of your money that the candidate said, declaring a score of men were being employed in improving the grounds.

COUNCIL CANDIDATES

Arthur Hinder said taxes had reached the limit. He elected as alderman he would seek to attain a reduction in the levy.

Charles Chivers said the city should secure the consent of the provincial and federal governments to a housing scheme. Using relief money for that purpose. Such a system would assist the city in disposing of reverted lots. He would support the Andros platform if elected as alderman.

Frank Le Roy said that Mayor Leeming would not have attained office had he been elected. In his election campaign, he said that he proposed to ask the Legislature to authorize him to borrow $200,000 without the consent of the ratepayers. He was standing for election to the council on a platform of "Not another penny additional taxes on our homes."

RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION

Frank Higgins, K.C., said the Ratepayers' Association was supporting the platform offered by Mr. Andros. The organization had offered to support Mayor Leeming if he would stop borrowing money and increasing taxes. The city debt of $18,000,000 had been created by the same methods as those being carried on by the present civic administration. "Do not be misled by this refunding talk. For years you have been paying sinking funds on your bonds. They want to issue new bonds and take those accumulated sinking funds and spend them on something else," he warned.

EX-COMMISSIONER MCGAVIN

Andrew McGavin announced his candidature for the council to be a gesture of protest against the summary deprivation of the people of the right to elect police commissioners. He read the City Council's letter to Attorney-General Pooley, giving approval of his abolition of the elected police commission. "They did their dirty work under cover. Pooley did it, but the mayor and council must be answered to the people," he declared, pledging support for Mr. Andros.

Mrs. Alice McGregor said it was time a woman had a place on the City Council. "If you want a rubber stamp, she said, the vote of $25,000 for the Publicity Bureau was so much money given away, she claimed. As

State Lumber Trade Limited By Exchange

Commons Told By Power and Neill of Canadians' Difficulties in Great Britain's Markets

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Owing to the exchange situation, British Columbia lumber manufacturers had a good chance to compete with the United States and the United States alone, in the United Kingdom market, but they would not be in a position to compete with Norway, said A. W. Neill, independent, Comox-Alberni, when the Commons in committee yesterday evening was discussing the Canada-Great Britain trade treaty.

In addition to that, they had lost the market in the United States, worth approximately $9,000,000 per annum, he said. In return, they could hope, at best, to secure the major portion of the market in the United Kingdom, worth about $4,000,000 according to figures given by the Prime Minister.

TWO BRITISH GROUPS

Major C. G. Power, Liberal, Quebec South, dealt at some length with the agreement in its bearing on the lumber industry of Canada.

Major Power described the British lumber interests as divided into two groups. One sought control of Russian imports into the United Kingdom and had had 960,000 board feet allotted to them annually. Having secured favorable terms from the Soviet government, they were also guaranteed against a fall in prices.

NOT BOUND

Liberal leader, Mr. E. S. King, stated that the agreement in its bearing on the lumber industry of Canada, he would not consider themselves bound by the tariff set forth in the agreement.

The natural market for products of northern Canada was the United States, declared J. E. Bradette, Liberal, North Westmorland. He had no objection to enlarging trade with the world, but he did object to the restrictions which the agreement imposed on trade with the rest of the world.

OBJECTS TO RESTRICTIONS

The lumber clause of the treaty was approved by the House in committee.

Astronomers Try To Photograph Leonids

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 15.—Harvard Observatory has set special scientific traps to record the Leonid meteors if they shower the sky with fire Wednesday night, in November. They have been located in Saskatchewan.

No Leonid has ever been reported as reaching the earth in the whole 1,000 years they have been making their tri-annual visits in November. They travel too fast, entering the atmosphere at forty-four miles a second, a speed which burns them to dust long before they can reach ground.

As they will not come to earth for analysis, the Harvard trap proposes to analyze them on the fly fifty to 150 miles aloft by photographing their blazing light through a spectroscopic prism placed in front of the camera's lens—breaks up the light into a rainbow. But on a photographic plate the rainbow images tell what kinds of atoms give the light.

ONLY TWELVE SO FAR
Catching the light of a meteor through a spectroscopic is one of the world's most difficult "shooting" jobs. So difficult that F. McMillan, the Harvard astronomer who is setting up the Leonid traps, says: "Only twelve such photographs have been obtained in the history of astronomy and no Leonid has ever been photographed in this way."
If there is a big shower Wednesday —like that of 1833 when 1,000 meteors per minute flashed across the heavens for three hours—photos are certain. But astronomers cannot predict these meteors with certainty. They may show in one part of the world and not in others, or not anywhere at all.

So Harvard has set up the spectrograph traps in Saskatchewan, Arizona, Texas, New York, New Hampshire and several in Massachusetts.

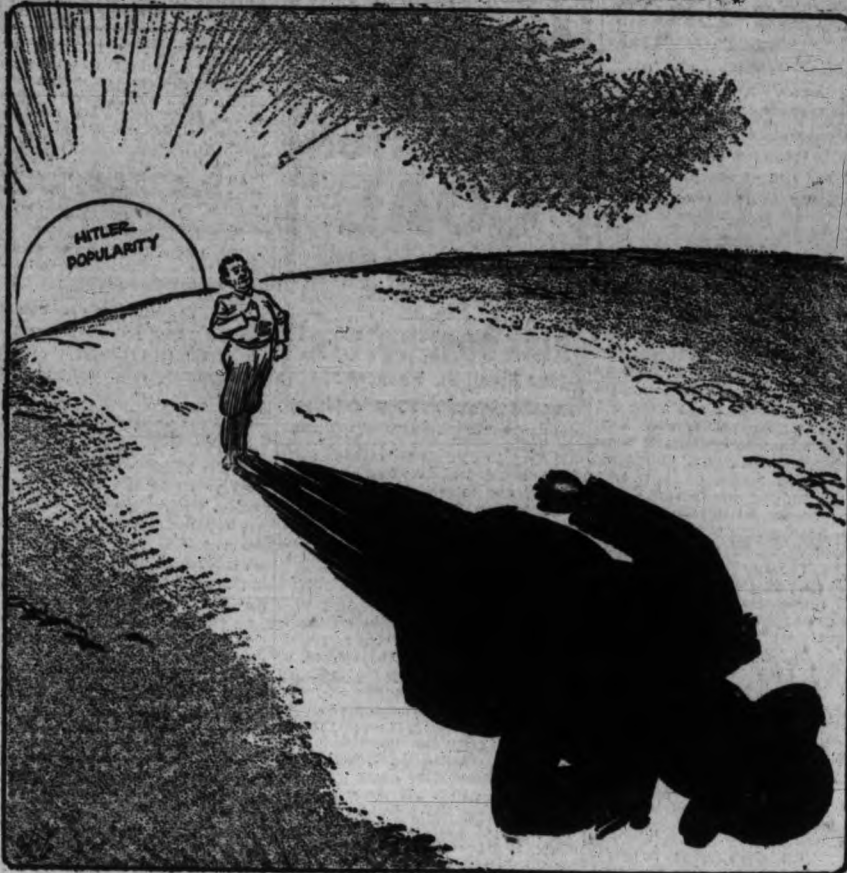

ELECTRIC STORMS
New York, Nov. 15.—Man's first opportunity to discover whether electrical storms accompany showers of meteors may come Wednesday night when the Leonid meteors are expected to reappear for one of their rare visits to the earth.

The idea that the bombardment of a large number of these meteors may cause a magnetic storm is advanced by A. M. Skellett of the Bell Laboratories. He has published a suggestion to scientists to set up the instruments which record magnetic disturbances.

Premier Informs Commons He Does Not Expect Substantial Loss on Government's Aid to Pools' Hedging on Wheat Market

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Premier Bennett gave the Commons yesterday afternoon a detailed account of the government's activities in connection with efforts made since August, 1930, to stabilize grain prices. It was in reply to a question on the order paper.

The question was as follows: "Has the government directly or indirectly purchased grain in the Winnipeg or any other market? If so, what is the cost of the grain so purchased? Under what statutory authority were such purchases made?"

In 1930, subsequent to the present administration taking office on August 7 of that year, Mr. Bennett said, representations were made to the government that it fix the price of wheat at about 70 cents a bushel and guarantee that it be sold at that price. The government declined and no action was taken.

Late in the fall of 1930, continued Mr. Bennett, John I. McFarland became general manager of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers' Limited, selling agency of the pools. He had accepted the position without salary and had continued to carry on the work ever since.

In 1930, subsequent to the present administration taking office on August 7 of that year, Mr. Bennett said, representations were made to the government that it fix the price of wheat at about 70 cents a bushel and guarantee that it be sold at that price. The government declined and no action was taken.

Late in the fall of 1930, continued Mr. Bennett, John I. McFarland became general manager of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers' Limited, selling agency of the pools. He had accepted the position without salary and had continued to carry on the work ever since.

wheat. The financial position of the country this year would not permit of such a bonus again being paid.

The capacity of western and eastern elevators totaled over 390,000,000 bushels. In the ordinary course of business, the wheat produced was hauled to a country elevator. If the farmer decided to sell, he was given a storage ticket. This year had witnessed a very large crop. About 225,000,000 bushels of wheat had already left the farmers' fields and been unloaded at the elevators. Last year the entire crop sold had amounted to 265,000,000 bushels. The elevator companies had not available sufficient working capital to purchase the entire wheat crop. They consequently had obtained money from the banks.

BANKS DEMAND

But the banks had insisted they should be protected from possible fluctuations in the wheat market. The banks had been asked to guarantee the wheat price.

The purchase of futures, said Mr. Bennett, "as it is called in this hedging operation, has heretofore in this country been carried on by two classes, speaking broadly (A) the investor, and (B) the speculator."

"In the first class were the milling companies or the purchasers abroad, what we will call those engaged in the grain business, who purchase wheat as a commodity in their line of business and deal with it as an investment for the purpose of their business. These operations continue to some extent, of course, curtailed naturally by the recent diminution in trade throughout the world."

"The second class, the speculator," Mr. Bennett proceeded, "has practically disappeared. There has been some speculation in Canada in wheat during the last six or eight months, the buying having been from Chicago, but I think I am correct in saying that broadly the speculator is no longer in evidence as a purchaser of wheat. Therefore, so far as hedging operations are concerned, you have the disappearance of the speculator, who thereby played a very important part, as Sir Josiah Stamp pointed out in his report, in connection with the marketing of wheat; and you have left the investor, with his ability to purchase curtailed by reason of the general trade depression."

GUARANTEES TO BANKS
"Under these circumstances, the Canadian Wheat Pools Limited, to which I have referred, became the only available hedging organization left in western Canada, and the government was faced at the moment with the issue as to whether or not, under these circumstances, it would give its support as provided by the Relief Act that passed in 1931 and 1932 as well as this being a product of the field and the farm—by guaranteeing to the banks such sums as might be necessary to enable these operations to be carried on by this organization. And guarantees were given in that sense."

"But before that was done the government had to consider whether or not the interest of Canada as a whole would be best served by continuing the bonus which was granted last year or by taking the steps it had just indicated for the purpose of protecting the general situation in connection with the marketing of wheat."

"It was quite apparent that unless hedging operations could be carried on there could be no marketing of this year's crop," said Mr. Bennett. "The result would be that the price of wheat would fall back to less than 40 cents per bushel."

POOLS HEDGED
"Therefore, not setting the price," continued the Prime Minister, "and not interfering in any sense with the operations of the law of supply and demand, but to secure the orderly and regulated disposition of the crop, the steps I have mentioned were taken and the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Pools Limited became the hedging agency in order to enable, with the assistance of the government, sales to take place and the crop to be marketed."

"As I have indicated," Mr. Bennett said, "there has been a market at the moment at least 175,000,000 bushels of the crop of this year and there had been delivered to the elevators up to Saturday roughly 225,000,000 bushels of this year's crop."

"While the price has fallen, it has fallen in an orderly manner and in accordance with the increased supply which, as I have mentioned, is out of all proportion to the demand. The crop in the Southern Hemisphere is now available and augments the supply by another 250,000,000 bushels. This will be in addition to the very large crop of our own country and the tremendous carrying hands of the Farm Board, and the result is that the market is very active."

"I hasten to assure the House that guarantee it."

M.P.'S DISCUSS CATTLE TRADE

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—The Commons in committee yesterday evening approved article 3 of the Canada-United Kingdom trade treaty.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Liberal, Melville, Sask., former Minister of Agriculture, expressed approval of the article, which provides for the removal of restrictions on the importation of Canadian live cattle into the United Kingdom. Any action tending to the elimination of restrictions on trade was all to the good.

A note of warning was sounded by Mr. Motherwell about the importation of pedigree stock into Canada. The reputation of this country for freedom from cattle diseases had been built up by the constant vigilance of the Department of Agriculture and the vigilance should not be relaxed.

Hon. J. C. Elliott inquired if the new British regulations regarding the importation of cattle from Canada had come into effect.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, replied his information was that the new regulations were now in effect.

WIDER TAX PLAN
Vancouver, Nov. 15 (Canadian Press).—The city council will send a committee to Victoria Wednesday night to interview the government Thursday morning in an effort to secure sanction to tax crown lands at their full value, instead of on a leasehold value as at present. The committee appointed yesterday consists of Mayor L. D. Taylor, Aldermen Miller, Bennett and Dean, City Solicitor Williams and Assessment Commissioner J. W. Allen.

Rheumatism Goes Swollen Joints Vanish

PAIN EASED FIRST DAY

If you suffer from crippling rheumatic pains, lame, knotted muscles or stiff, swollen joints, it's because your system is full of the irritating poisons that cause rheumatism and make thousands helpless.

What you need right now is RU-MA, the new, internal medicine that acts directly on the liver, kidneys and blood, and expels through the natural channels of elimination these dangerous poisons. Only an internal remedy will do this.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop—RU-MA eases pain first day and so quickly and safely ends stiffening, crippling lameness and torturing pain that MacFarlane and Vancouver Store urge every rheumatic sufferer to get a bottle to-day. They guarantee it.

Do Just These Two Simple Things—Fat Melts Away

Science has made important discoveries in fat reduction. The average fat person can now rip off fat a pound a day—four to seven pounds every week—on a full stomach, with never a hungry moment. Thus it is foolish now to stay fat.

This is what you do. Take a teaspoonful ordinary Jad Salts in a glass of water a half hour before breakfast every morning. This reduces moisture weight instantly. Also cleanses the system of the waste matter and excess toxins that most fat people have, and banishes puffiness and bloating.

Then do this about eating. FILL YOUR STOMACH—eat your fill of lean meats, vegetables like spinach, cauliflower, cabbage, tomatoes, etc., and lots of salads. Eat a lot. Eat all you can hold. Don't go hungry a minute! Cut down on fats, sweets and desserts, bread. Eat any fruit for dessert.

That's all you do. Fat seems to melt away. The coarse lines of overweight give way to the refined ones of slenderness. You lose as much as a pound a day. You feel better than for years. For in this treatment you achieve two important results. The Jad Salts carry your system of toxins. The diet takes off fat with food that turns into energy instead of weight.

If you're tired of being embarrassed by fat, try this way. You'll be glad that you did. You can get Jad Salts at any drug store.

Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work.

ARTIFICIAL RESTRICTIONS BEING CURTAILED

The House of Commons at Ottawa is passing a bill to curtail the power of the Minister of National Revenue to fix valuations for customs duty on imports to Canada under the preferential tariff adopted in pursuance of the recent Economic Conference. This legislation was insisted upon by the British delegates to the conference, who contended that it was useless to enter into any tariff agreements as long as the Canadian government could fix its own valuations on imports to Canada according to its own will.

The power a complacent majority of the Canadian House of Commons gave to the government in the Customs Act several sessions ago was operated in such a way as to impose the most fantastic restrictions upon Canada's trade with Great Britain. Indeed, under its operation in many instances the duties charged against certain British imports were higher than were ever before even dreamed of in any other protectionist country on earth. From time to time The Times has given instances in which the duties ran higher than one hundred per cent. In some cases the charges actually amounted to several times the original purchase price of the imported article. While legal enough, of course, since Parliament authorized this amazing practice, it was morally dishonest, and Mr. Baldwin was very emphatic in his condemnation of it.

While this power has been curtailed in respect of empire products, it will continue in its relation to imports from foreign countries. If you bring any little gim-crack from the Orient which is not produced in Canada, for example, the customs department fixes its own valuation on it, which is several times the amount you paid for it, and soaks you about forty per cent on that artificial valuation. This is nothing less than legalized racketeering and is an encouragement to smuggling, since the victim feels that he is engaged in a game with the government in which each is trying to get the best of the other. If the government's conscience can stand this appropriation of the importer's money to which it is not morally entitled, the importer feels that his own conscience need not be outraged when he is able to deceive the government.

The adoption of such a vicious practice anywhere in a world which is suffering from the strangulation of its trade is an astonishing revelation of official stupidity. Ottawa has just begun a policy of inflation which before long will be expanded in an extraordinary measure because this year it is confronted with the largest deficit in the history of the country. It would rather resort to that dubious expedient than remove the barriers it has erected in the path of Canada's import trade.

THE COST TO FREE STATE FARMERS OF DE VALERA'S POLICY

In the economic sense, the Irish Free State as far as her relations with Great Britain are concerned, became a foreign country to-day, for at midnight the special preferences which were extended to Dominion products under the National Government's tariff policy expired. The other parts of the empire, of course, are not involved; they made their own arrangements with Great Britain at Ottawa. But the Irish Free State did not.

In retaliation for Mr. de Valera's refusal to continue to pay the land annuities to the Bank of England the government at Westminster some time ago imposed a tariff on agricultural products which for many years have enjoyed heavy sales in the British market. These duties are now to be increased to as high as fifty per cent on cattle, or more than double the rate provided in the schedule wiped out at midnight. Manufactured products from the Free State will now be charged a duty of at least ten per cent.

It is stated in a dispatch from London, incidentally, that $50,000,000 represents the loss which the Free State farmers have suffered in the tariff war, and this is regarded as merely the beginning. We are told, too, that the cattle population of the Free State is somewhat in excess of 3,000,000 head, or nearly equivalent to the sheep population of Canada. The farmers themselves say that each animal is worth between fifteen and twenty dollars less than before tariff hostilities began. In other words, under the new schedule of customs duties the United Kingdom market is virtually closed to Irish Free State agricultural products.

It is for Mr. de Valera to decide, of course, whether the loss to the Free State farmers to date of $50,000,000, in only a few months, is better than paying $15,000,000 a year in land annuities under the treaty with Great Britain. On the other hand, the farmers and those involved by the loss of the British market may find some way of changing his mind very soon if their losses continue to pile up.

THE "LAME DUCK" SESSION UP AGAINST WAR DEBTS

Although President Hoover's conference with President-elect Roosevelt on the war debt question will be "wholly informal and personal," and that due regard will have to be paid to the latter's statement that "the immediate question raised by the British, French, and other debt notes created a responsibility which rests upon those now vested with executive and legislative authority," Mr. Roosevelt's prompt acceptance of Mr. Hoover's invitation to attend this meeting will no doubt be approved all over the republic.

This meeting between the President and his successor emphasizes the weakness of the constitutional requirement which does not permit a new President of the United States to take office until four months after the election. When Congress meets next month, Mr. Hoover will still be President and what is known as the "lame duck" session will be conducted by a Congress which has a Republican majority of one in the Senate—forty-eight Republicans, forty-seven Democrats, and one Farmer-Labor—and a House of Representatives in which the Democrats are in the majority by a very small margin. It is not expected, of course, that after the verdict of last Tuesday, which will give the Democrats a three-to-one control of the next House and a majority of more than a score in the Senate, anything in the nature of radical legislation will be introduced. Indeed it is the "lame duck" period which makes it difficult to deal with the war debts question.

It will be remembered that both Republican and Democrat platforms opposed the cancellation of war debts. But the action of European governments in asking for a conference to review the problem puts rather a different complexion on the matter. They took no steps in this direction before the election in order that neither presidential candidate would be embarrassed. However, it has now been brought into the open, and a conference between the President and his successor, unofficial though it must be under the constitutional circumstances, was inevitable.

One or two publicists in the United States, incidentally, have boldly stated that the Washington government itself will have to cancel the debts voluntarily or force the debtor nations to repudiate them. All that has been suggested in the meantime is postponement of payments falling due next month.

THE ST. LAWRENCE PROJECT ATTACKED BY BUFFALO

One of the most aggressive organizations in the United States which is opposing the ratification of the St. Lawrence Waterways Treaty is the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce. It considers this project would lead to the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars upon a project the economic value of which "is wholly speculative and conjectural." Nor does this body think the benefit to the American people would be sufficient to outweigh the burden of debt and taxation which would result from the cost of the undertaking. It contends also that the work would cost a great deal more than its advocates represent. Another point the Buffalo chamber makes is that the amount of probable traffic is greatly exaggerated, and it points to the marked decline in recent years in the amount of United States wheat exported, the development of other routes—via Galveston, Vancouver, and Churchill—while it notes also that production in other parts of the world "has changed the entire picture since the agitation for the St. Lawrence shipway began about fifteen years ago." We are told in addition that a survey of the various products counted on to enter the Great Lakes by way of the deeper shipway indicates that many of such products, in conformity with natural laws, will continue to come to Pacific and Atlantic ports and break bulk there.

It is only natural, of course, that the Buffalo organization should be concerned about the effect any diversion of traffic to the St. Lawrence would have upon the business of the United States rail and water routes now handling traffic between Great Lakes ports and the Atlantic seaboard. The basis of its whole contention is that the enormous cost of the project could not be justified, even were it kept within the present estimates, because of changed conditions throughout the world in the last fifteen years, and, of course, the particular economic conditions with which the republic is now confronted.

As far as Canada is concerned, the project has its advocates and its opponents. Opinion in the Dominion perhaps is just about as divided as it is in the United States. True, Canada's signature, with that of our neighbor, has been affixed to the treaty; but the Canadian Parliament does not propose to do anything further with the matter until the treaty has been endorsed by the United States Senate. There are many more pressing problems facing us than this, problems which will have to be solved before money is voted for Canada's share of the project. Mr. Hoover is an enthusiastic supporter of the scheme. Mr. Roosevelt approved it; but he definitely qualified his approval with the stipulation that under his administration private interests would not be permitted to run away with the power which would be developed. Over that part of the business he would exercise full governmental control in the public interest.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

EVASDED RESPONSIBILITIES
 The Winnipeg Tribune

It took just seven weeks, after the university defalcations were made public, to establish in evidence the responsibilities, in law, of the governors, and their neglect of these legal prescriptions. In a word, it has been clearly shown that their responsibilities were continuously evaded.

UNDER ITS OWN CONTROL
 The New York Sun

Beneath all the recent publicity and praise for the movement to persuade business to divide its tasks and thus create jobs for idle workers there has run a thin current of scepticism. Some who have not examined the merits of the plan are asking if this is not just another scheme to bolster up faith in ultimate recovery. Some may even be blindly or stubbornly indifferent toward the idea of cutting working time to put the jobless back to work. But the greatest recommendation that can be given to the movement is to say it offers a concrete way for business to help itself out of the ditch.

Loose Ends

Something is going on at Ottawa which is difficult to understand—Parliament proves a somewhat expensive toy—there is gloom on our island—past the end of the pavement—and the salmon come back again.

By H. R. W.

INFLATION

SOMETHING is going on in Ottawa with our currency which leaves the average man in a state of even greater confusion than is normal with him. So far as I can make out from the public prints, and from talking to men who understand these things, Mr. Bennett, having announced that he would never do any such thing as inflate the Canadian currency by $35,000,000 through a simple arrangement with the banks. This may be a good thing, I am prepared to believe, and many great economists advocate that all currencies should be inflated somewhat to increase commodity prices and start things moving. But it is a rather serious matter. In Britain, for example, they held the last election on that single issue with the interesting result that the National Government, elected to keep the pound sterling on gold, instantly removed it therefrom. But at least they went through the motions of consulting the people and Parliament had to pass legislation repealing the gold standard.

HERE, THE Canadian government has discovered a way by which it can inflate to its heart's content without consulting anybody. No one hears about it until after the new paper money has been issued. There is nothing to prevent the government from making our dollar worth fifty cents to-morrow if it wants to. This may be all right, and the Canadian people don't seem to object to it. They don't seem to object to anything these days. But if the government can change the whole basis of our economy, wipe out a large part of the interest debts it doesn't owe, and renege on its obligations without consulting anybody, just what use is there maintaining Parliament at all? It is too expensive a luxury in these times. And there is nothing to indicate that the free and untrammelled electors would object to its abolition either.

COCKED HATS

AS I HAVE pointed out before—I wonder if there is anything I haven't pointed out before?—the electors will raise a great hue and cry over something that doesn't matter like Mr. King's unhappy five-cent speech, but the able politician knows how to do the most vital things while the electorate dozes. Simply because the important things are too complicated to interest the electoral mind. Already the government of Canada has a blank check for unemployment purposes and under this specious arrangement can spend as much as it likes and lend as much as it likes to anyone. It manages the tariff to suit itself through dumping duties. Now it is managing the currency. About all Parliament has left are a few Windsor uniforms and some cocked hats. It is already too inflated to fit comfortably into the former and all its ancient, prehistoric, and modern sins have been knocked into the latter.

GLOOM

AT THIS SEASON, in the gloomy depths of November, which some how are gloomier than any other depths, our island seems a pretty dismal place once you get past the end of the pavement and the habitations of men. To the ordinary person there is a special kind of gloom in the forests these days which you don't find anywhere else, a kind of eerie feeling which makes him want to rush out into the open, away from the oppressive, dank roof of the big trees. But to a man of imagination and romantic perceptions this is one of the finest seasons of the year in the woods. If you want to discover whether you are a man of imagination and romantic perceptions, go out into the woods these days, tramp over the wet leaf mold which yields so softly under your feet, listen to the wind far up above, where only small patches of sky show through the forest ceiling, feel the utter silence of it, the darkness of it, the twilight and the endless sweep of it, as if you could never reach its edge, the complete loneliness of it. If you are a man of imagination and romantic perceptions, you will like it. If you are an ordinary fellow you will go home as fast as you can and put on some dry socks and take something liquid to warm you up.

BUT IT is not all gloom. There is more color in the forest just now than at any time of the year, though it is fading fast. There is yellow of maples against the evergreen, and great carpets of russet where the leaves have fallen. The dogwoods are still scarlet, and the arbutus trees have suddenly burst out this year in chorus of rejoicing, with great bunches of red berries hanging in clusters like grapes. And the mistle hanging in the valleys as if they were suspended between the trees on an invisible thread, give the woods a soft, unreal look, a kind of blue and purple mystery most satisfying to the person of imagination and romantic perceptions.

ISLAND EPIC

UP AT Goldstream, too, you can see in miniature the epic of our coast salmon which is repeated every year at this time and doubtless will go on long after this particular civilization has become a distant and somewhat odorous memory. The salmon are swimming up the shallow waters of Goldstream, thousands of them, tons of them, poor battered and discolored creatures which seek only to lay their eggs on a sand bar, and assure the continuance of their race.

and then to die. It is an old story and a common one on this coast, this epic of our salmon, who swim back from the uttermost depths of the sea to the particular streamlet where they were hatched four years ago and then, having accomplished their life, end it without complaint and without fuss.

YOU CAN see them struggling with their last spark of life through water so shallow that their round, shiny backs are above the surface, or resting in larger pools where they will leave their eggs, creatures which have followed their destiny to the ends of the ocean and are now back again where they started, in Goldstream—strange, inscrutable quest, which we higher animals shall never understand. Far up above, white, against the black of the forest, the sea-gulls wheel round and round expectantly for there will be a great feast here soon. Thus nature will complete the annual cycle of the salmon in simple, sanitary fashion. Meanwhile the half-dead salmon struggle up the stream so that there may be more salmon in Goldstream four years from now. A stout fellow with a red face and a large cigar stood on the bridge at Goldstream yesterday beside his shiny limousine, and watched the death struggle of the salmon. "Gosh," he observed, "that's a terrible waste of good fish. Somebody could make a lot of money canning them."

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES

(From The Times Files)
 Weather Forecast—Victoria and vicinity—Easterly to southerly winds, unsettled with showers, not much change in temperature.

There is some probability that work will be commenced in connection with the proposed new freight terminals of the Canadian Pacific at an early date. If the hitch interposed by the dispute with the City Council is removed, as has been suggested by Alderman Hanna, the chances are that workmen will be put on at once to prepare the site for a new building.

The San Francisco steamer Governor was somewhere within speaking distance by wireless this forenoon. This was ascertained at the Dominion Government station at Shotbolt's Hill, where Cecil Doure, the superintendent of the Dominion wireless service, was testing the apparatus installed.

The last of the sealing fleet has arrived, the Otto, Captain Searle, entering the harbor to-day. The schooner brought in 374 skins and 1,000 quintals of cod.

Unless rain comes soon to increase the water supply at Goldstream there is prevailing opinion that there may be some trouble with the electric lighting in the city.

The chrysanthemum show, which opened yesterday in the Carnegie Library, has been so far in every way an unqualified success. The weather contributed in no small degree to this fact.

Indoor baseball is to be one of the principal games to be played in the drill hall this winter by the members of the Fifth Regiment.

BOY SCOUT CONFERENCE

To the Editor:—For the past twelve years patrol leaders from British Columbia, Washington and Oregon, have met together annually to discuss matters pertaining to scouting. Last year the conference was held in Vancouver and it was the unanimous desire of the conference that it be held in Victoria this year.

To do this, it is necessary to provide a minimum of 250 billets for visiting patrol leaders. In normal times these billets could probably be provided by parents of scouts and cubs, but owing to the abnormal times, an appeal to parents has produced only half of the billets required.

It is necessary, therefore, if the conference is to come off, to make an appeal to the general public, through the press, for more billets. The dates of the conference are Friday, November 25 to Sunday, November 27. The boys will be arriving on the Friday afternoon and leaving on the Sunday afternoon. Meals required would be, Friday, none; Saturday, three; Sunday, two. Arrangements will be made to assist with transportation to and from billets, if required.

An excellent programme has been prepared for the conference, and to have to call it off now owing to lack of billets would be, I think, a reflection on the City of Victoria. It is because I know there must be many who would gladly billet a scout if they knew the facts of the case, that I venture to make this appeal.

Will anyone, therefore, willing to billet one or more scouts, please telephone Garden 6849, Empire 0683 or Empire 7841.

SYMPHONY CONCERT

To the Editor:—In order that there will be nothing to mar the pleasure of those attending the concert to be given by the Seattle Symphony Orchestra at 3:30 in the afternoon and 8:30 in the evening on Wednesday (the 16th instant) at the Royal Victoria Theatre, we are requesting the management of the theatre not to permit anyone who is late to take his or her seat until after the finish of the first selection of movement. Therefore we earnestly request all patrons to be in their seats well before the time for the commencement of the concert.

ABOUT RUSSIA

To the Editor:—Referring to the letter of Mr. Hans Kroeger in your issue of November 11, giving some particulars of the gigantic electrical power plant recently erected in Russia, I should like to ask him if he can apply a little further information for the benefit of Canadian workers.

1—The total cost in United States dollars.
 2—Number of men (including women) employed in construction.
 3—Average daily wage.
 4—Average daily cost of living of workers.
 5—Number of casualties (death or disablement).

I would like to add that I am not asking these questions in a spirit of carping criticism, as I feel that Canada as a young nation can profit thereby by following the example or avoiding the mistakes of older nations, but I must say that the Russian system does not seem very attractive to those who can view it at close range, and not even to

Mr. Kroeger himself, as he seems to prefer Victoria, B.C.

THE MILK ACT

To the Editor:—Under date of November 11 in The Province I read with interest "the government had little to say on the subject save that no part of the costs of litigation would fall on the provincial exchequer," and further, "while no official comment on the Privy Council's decision against the act was forthcoming it was clear that the government was relieved at the London verdict. It never believed in the act."

Without this confirming assurance from Victoria there is conclusive evidence during the last two years that the cabinet never did believe in the act, also that members of the legal profession in the cabinet were well aware that the act could not be sustained in a court of law. Why did the Hon. Premier and all members of his cabinet, except the President of the Council, stand up and vote for legislation which they knew could not remain upon the statute books? Expense of promotion of this act, putting it through the British Columbia Parliament and following litigation through the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeal and the Privy Council, also expense of public meetings and propaganda, was borne by all farmers in the Fraser Valley who have been fruitlessly exploited during a period of unprecedented depression. While the British Columbia Government truthfully states "no part of the costs of litigation would fall on the provincial exchequer" this is cold comfort to the farmers who trusted their representatives to give them honest advice, men sworn to do their duty for God and country.

We are now faced with a situation which must be corrected from the foundation. With proper consideration for the consuming public, stabilization of price and quality in the city will give a living wage to the farmer. This should have been an accomplished fact on January 1, 1931, also again in March, 1932. To-day a street price structure arrangement is the first step towards recovery from rate war tactics. All the farmers' existing contracts are adjustable to the street price which is immediately reflected in the half monthly milk cheques to producers. Is it not better to focus our attention upon business to be started from a sound basis than to continue to discuss a costly experiment which by admission of the Premier was known to be ultra vires, and as a direct result of this abortive legislation all farmers in the Fraser Valley have sustained a direct loss of over a million dollars, which is a conservative estimate of result.

TELLS MERITS OF RECREATION

Lessens Strain of Modern Life, F. Paulding Tells Local Gyros

In an age of great pressure and strain the value of recreation was brought home firmly to thinking men, Frank Paulding, general secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., told members of the Gyro Club at their luncheon in the Empress Hotel yesterday. Play, in the form of some method of self-expression, lessened the strain and tended to bring people back from the realm of the spectator to the world of the doer, he said.

feature of great value. Mr. Paulding continued, outlining the essence of art. To achieve recognition in art required painstaking work and activity.

ART RECREATION

He referred to the higher arts and lesser ones, such as hobbies. Public speaking was an art which was well worth while, he said, outlining various phases of this medium and showing the manner in which it led to a fine form of self-expression.

Turning to the third field of expression, service, he stressed the fact that a man added to his character just what he did in service, not what he secured selfishly from the service of others.

The service club had done a great work on this continent in furnishing channels for expression, he declared. Grouping the three, he urged his hearers not to let their recreations become burdens, but to remember that a man got out of recreation just what he put into it.

TO-DAY'S BEST FISHING STORY

Fishermen at Shawnigan Lake Have Big Buck to Play With; It Even Laughed at Them.

Fishing was good and deer hunting conditions were perfect at Shawnigan Lake Sunday for Robert Mason, well-known sportsman. Bob and his friends landed a number of fine trout from the lake. Then a big buck deer, with insolent indifference to Bob's hunting reputation, swam leisurely around the boat. With his hunting blood stirred, Bob set out after it. Either he would rope it, gaff it or fell it with an ear. But the deer got to a log boom and made a getaway.

Veterans' Banquet Held at Shawnigan

Shawnigan Lake, Nov. 15.—Fifty veterans of Shawnigan Lake and district attended a reunion dinner at the Shawnigan Lake Athletic Association's hall on Thursday. Many had seen service in all parts of the Empire. Colonel F. T. Oldham, R.A., presided. An impromptu programme followed the dinner, the artists including Captain A. T. Hunt, H. G. Grainger, G. Middleton, A. Layton, Captain A. Pollin, Captain A. Lane and D. F. MacDonald.

SALT SPRING

Ganges, Nov. 15.—The Gulf Islands Hospital admitted twenty-two patients during October. There were four births and the number of hospital days was 173. Donations received were: J. Akerman, coffee; Mrs. J. Rogers, jelly; E. Walters, vegetables; Mrs. H. Johnson, grapes; L. Cropper, eggs and chickens; Mr. Yuen, vegetables; Burgoyne Church, fruit and vegetables; Mrs. C. Justice, hams; St. Mary's Church, apples, pears, cabbages, carrots, parsnips, beets, grapes, squash and bread; Mrs. J. J. Shaw, two kinomons and apples.

On Thursday the South Salt Spring Women's Institute held their meeting at the home of one of the members, Mrs. R. McLennan, in the Burgoyne Valley. The president, Mrs. Maxwell and twelve members present. Following routine business and financial arrangements for the benefit dance on Armistice night, a very interesting report of the recent annual conference of Federated Women's Institutes, held in Victoria, was read by Mrs. Maxwell and much enjoyed by the meeting. A new member, Mrs. Townsend, recently arrived on the island from Saskatchewan, was welcomed. Tea was

SWEEP VOTE IS DELAYED

Council Will Be Given Legal Ruling on Plebiscite Plan

Ald. R. T. Williams Wishes to Submit Referendum

Faced with the possibility of legal objections, the City Council yesterday evening deferred for one week a motion submitted by Alderman R. T. Williams seeking submission of a referendum on the question of sweepstakes for hospitals.

Owing to the importance of the legal point involved, City Solicitor H. S. Pringle stated he did not wish to give a snap judgment on the matter and would like time to consider whether the council had a legal right to submit a plebiscite on a matter over which it had no administrative power. As a result, Alderman Williams's attempt to pass the motion and secure a legal ruling afterwards was over-ruled and the delay occasioned.

His motion would have the effect of getting a vote on the question: "Are you in favor of sweepstakes for the benefit of hospitals?" at the December poll.

Everybody knew, he said, the condition of hospital finances in these times and his move was designed to benefit hospitals of this country and take away patronage of hospitals outside the country.

Alderman T. W. C. Hawkins seconded, taking the view that it was time the sweepstakes question was settled for good.

ASKS FOR RULING

Alderman P. R. Brown then moved an amendment that a legal ruling on the matter be sought, as if the council had no power to submit the referendum it would be a waste of money.

"Well, pass it now, and then find out if it's illegal afterwards," said Alderman Williams.

Alderman W. T. Straith then pointed out that the taking of a vote involved an expenditure of money and, should it be discovered afterwards that the referendum would be open to challenge.

Mr. Pringle was asked if he cared to give an immediate ruling on the point of legality and stated:

"I would prefer to look into it more thoroughly, but I have grave doubts about the city's powers in this regard."

PARK SITE RECONSIDERED

Two Committees of Council to Discuss Bouchier Avenue Area

Preliminary steps to unravel the tangle which developed over suggested park site at the corner of Bouchier Street and Poul Bay Road, on the boundary line between the city and Oak Bay, were taken by the City Council yesterday evening at the instigation of Alderman H. O. Litchfield, lands committee chairman.

The site, which was reserved on the advice of the lands committee's recommendation to slip by unnoticed last Monday as he had been busy with something else at the time. He saw a hint of personal spite against himself in that committee's action and disputed the suggestion that the area was not suitable. It had been stated one of the objections to the place was that a street went through the corner, but, he maintained, this same condition prevailed in respect of at least two school playgrounds in the city.

A proposal sponsored by the City Council of Winnipeg, Manitoba, asking an amendment to the Bank Act under which loans to municipalities for relief purposes at four per cent should be granted, was advanced at the City Council yesterday evening.

May Extend Potato Crop

City-owned Vacant Lots for "Spuds" Is Idea of Parks Head.

The city parks committee may go in for potato raising on a larger scale next year as a result of the success attendant upon Parks Superintendent W. H. Warren's potato patch in Beacon Hill Park this year.

Yesterday evening Alderman John

Worthington, parks' committee chairman, secured support for a resolution asking the lands committee to provide his committee with a list of vacant city-owned properties which might be used for potato raising by relief workers next year. He pointed out that this would give the men something to do in which they would be interested, and would also be productive.

During dinner Miss Phoebe Senkler and Mr. Warren played several selections, including some of the old war songs.

On the other hand an alien woman marrying a Britisher automatically assumes his nationality. The death of a British woman's alien husband or the dissolution of the marriage does not automatically restore her British citizenship, but gives her the right to apply for reinstatement as a British national.

OLD IDEA OF SUBJECTION
Women's organizations in Great Britain have since 1917 approached every Imperial conference with a view to securing for women the right to retain their nationality on marriage to an alien, and to have equal rights with men in choosing their nationality. In pressing their claim, the British women, backed by strong representation from eight international, organized women's bodies, declared that the Hague convention, which does not concede a woman's right to her own nationality, is a relic of the past and that the subject of women in the matter of nationality, and urged that a woman be allowed to retain her own nationality irrespective of marriage, as is the man's privilege.

Canada was the only government in the British Commonwealth which endorsed the Hague convention, which aimed to prevent either statelessness or a double nationality. Mrs. Spottford observed, although many other countries, including all the great republics of South America, China, Turkey and many of the countries of Europe, recognize a married woman's right to choose her own nationality. Mrs. Spottford was warmly thanked at the close of her interesting and informative address.

CHILDREN'S OPERATING TABLE FUND
Mrs. Angus Galbraith, treasurer of the children's operating table fund, presented a report of this committee, of which Mrs. W. H. Booth is convener. The fund was inaugurated on March 17, 1928, since when the total fund raised has been $2,286.51, and disbursement $2,240.58, leaving a balance to date of $45.93. To date 300 children have been assisted with minor operations, such as tonsil and adenoid surgery, from this fund, which was designed to help needy cases where such operations were essential and the parents unable to afford the cost.

It was pointed out that the last public appeal on behalf of the fund was in March, 1928, and assistance was earnestly solicited on the grounds that at the present time a vote of thanks was passed to Mrs. Booth and Mrs. Galbraith and those who had assisted them, including Mrs. H. Crocker and was no longer bleak—it was crowded, absorbing, full of stories demanding to be written.

"I've always felt that closing of a story to be the best part. I like it to be triumphant, happy, natural."

"So with my own story. It will soon be time to write 'Finis' to the last chapter, and close the book with a happy sigh."

"In spite of pain and weakness and acceptance of the inevitable, I'm more truly happy than I've been for years. Happy away down deep. So what better place could there be to write it? None, better, surely. Finis."

Fur Jackets To Be Even Shorter
Washington, Nov. 15.—Winters have to blow very cold this winter to unsettle the debutante contingent here from the preference for the short, quite short, fur jacket.

For evening it is a white "bunny" coat wrapped coquettishly tight about the figure, reaching just to the high of the thighs, of the formal dress or "for daytime" it is a grey or brown fur coat made short enough to display some interesting detail of trimming on the dress.

"FINIS" HER LAST CONTRIBUTION
Late Nina Moore Jamieson Leaves Touching Story of Brave Struggle

Canadian Press
Toronto, Nov. 15.—Together with the notice of her death, The Mail and Empire carried on the front page Nina Moore Jamieson's last contribution, "Finis." After telling how she came to write of farm life, she continued in part as follows:

"It was the beginning of a series of delights. I had enjoyed many phases of farm life—now I had a chance to pass them on. I determined to give up the farm life, the gentle kindness of rural life. So often I had been moved to futile rage over the way sordidness and ignorance had been played up in stories of farm life that I deliberately sought for evidence of other characteristics. Perhaps that explains some of my pleasure in the work—I was seeking beauty; and, of course, I found it."

"What a simple, easy work it was. Just opening the door for a glimpse of cows pasturing pleasantly on a green hill; children laughing in the orchard; the threshing machine coming down the lane; lonesome little English home boys playing his mouth organ softly in the dusk; old white Jackie, the goat, cornered by the geese; Christmas on the old farm; life, death, partings and meetings, furores and young clover; stubble and Indian summer."

PRIVATE DEPRESSION
"You've heard about the depression? I never even noticed it when it came. I had been in the grip of my own private depression for some time."

"It began with my mother's death—the gallant comrade who had always been able to twinkle, to whistle my courage up, to understand and sympathize without need of words—ah, but she turned back on the very brink of the river to leave me one last message from her beautiful eyes, when she could no longer speak. 'Have courage. Everything will be all right.'"

"I needed that in the days that followed. When my health went, in such a way that I knew whatever time remained to me would be only a losing struggle; when suddenly a line of work I had greatly prized was taken from me without warning or explanation; when I realized finally in sickness of mind and body, that we would have to give up the farm—I needed courage and faith, then, and the touch of the vanished hand."

"People occasionally wrote or said to me: 'We miss the humor that used to show in your work.' 'Where are the gay whimsical touches?' I wonder."

DOGGED DETERMINATION
"Dogg"—that's the word for what I did in these days. But presently I managed to get on top of things again and find that even a twisted grin is better than no grin at all. Doors opened here and there, and little opportunities beckoned. Suddenly life

PAY TRIBUTE TO LATE REGENT

Esquimalt I.O.O.F. Eulogize Work of Mrs. C. P. Hill at Meeting Yesterday

Members of the Mary Croft, Esquimalt Chapter, I.O.O.F., at their meeting, held yesterday afternoon in the Esquimalt rooms, stood in silent tribute to the memory of their late regent, Mrs. C. P. Hill, and as an expression of their sincere sympathy with her family.

R. Wright, acting regent, spoke of Mrs. Hill's special gift of organization which had been so helpful to the chapter during her regency. Her kindness and the generous hospitality with which she was always ready to place her home and energies at their disposal, and her cheerful willingness to always be inquiring of the members. Many letters of sympathy were received, each expressing the great loss it was felt that the order had sustained in the passing of Mrs. Hill.

A letter was received from the St. Paul's Scout Troop thanking the chapter for the gift of a standard carrier. Mrs. Quinn, convener of graves committee, reported that thirty-three crosses and wreaths were placed on the graves in the Esquimalt Naval and Military Cemetery on Armistice Day, and that wreaths were placed at the memorial in the St. Paul's Garrison Memorial Park. She had attended the service at the cemetery with the standard, the chapter being well represented.

At the request of Mrs. W. H. Booth, Mrs. Withers was named to represent the chapter on the Esquimalt Child Hygiene Council. In order to meet obligations under a raise funds for the Esquimalt playing fields and the Lamson Street School fund, the members pledged themselves each to a dollar amount of talent money during the balance of the year.

The rooms were attractively decorated with chrysanthemums and poinsettias in shades of brown and yellow, the gift of Mrs. Brown. The next meeting will be held on Monday, December 5, in the municipal rooms.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

If economy is an object, you can effect a worth-while saving by doing your own baking. After a little experience you will do it easily and with perfect results.

Breads made light by the use of yeast are on the whole more satisfactory than the so-called quick breads made light by the use of baking powder. And while the average housewife seems to feel that yeast breads are more trouble to make, this is a mistake. For actually the process is neither hard nor tedious.

The flour used for bread-making is probably wheat flour made from spring wheat. This kind of flour contains more gluten than that made from winter wheat and therefore retains the gas which develops in the bread dough better than pastry flour made from winter wheat.

Following is a rule which will make two loaves of bread with explicit instructions telling you just how to go about it.

BREAD

Two cups scalded milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon lard, 2½ teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 cakes compressed yeast, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 6 cups flour.

Put butter, lard, sugar and salt into a large mixing bowl. Add scalded milk and cool to lukewarm temperature. In the meantime soften yeast cake in water which has been boiled and cooled to lukewarm temperature, adding teaspoon sugar to water. When milk is lukewarm add dissolved yeast cake.

Add three cups of flour and beat until smooth. Add two more cups of flour, cutting it in with a knife until thoroughly mixed.

Just enough to make the dough of such consistency that it can be kneaded without sticking to the board. Knead until the dough is smooth and springy. Put into an oiled mixing bowl, cover with a clean cloth and large plate or cover.

Put in a warm place and leave it until it is double in bulk. It will take about one hour. Then cut through and through with a case knife and knead into a smooth ball. Make into two loaves and let these rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Put into a hot oven for fifteen minutes. Then reduce the heat and bake in a moderate oven for forty-five minutes longer.

The temperature of the dough rising should be carefully watched. Between 75 and 80 degrees Fahrenheit should be maintained throughout the whole process.

After the dough has risen the first time to double its bulk it can be "cut down" and kept in the refrigerator for a day or longer. Remember that it will take the chilled dough longer to rise when made into loaves, and bake in a moderate oven for forty-five minutes longer.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

Breakfast: Grapes, cereal, cream, broiled cottage ham, pop-over, honey, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Luncheon rice, carrot and celery salad, lemon, pudding, cocoa.

Dinner: Blanquette of lamb, glazed sweet potatoes, green beans, beet and pea salad, canned strawberries in jelly, coconut macaroons, milk, coffee.

The larger of the two necklaces once belonged to Empress Catherine of Russia and is composed of a hexagonal emerald weighing 119 karats, nine other large emeralds and 1,837 diamonds. The present value is $183,966.13. The smaller necklace has twenty-three large perfectly matched pearls, three large diamonds and two flexible bars of diamonds containing 100 round and twelve square diamonds. Its value is $406,581.16. Other jewelry in the collection brought the total value of Mrs. McCormick's gems to more than $750,000.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

MISBEHAVIOR ALMOST CERTAIN BY-PRODUCT OF JEALOUSY

Jealousy is a perfectly natural emotion, the outgrowth—some authorities call it "the perversion"—of the emotion of love. Even the tiniest baby very easily exhibits his delight at evidences of affection from those who care for him, and it is not at all unusual for even very young children to show the most appalling indications of jealousy.

LOSS OF ATTENTION

The commonest root for jealousy is grounded in the unexpected arrival of a new baby in the household, and the reigning belief has to give up his desirable position as the only child. The mother, unaware of the actions which are inspired by this situation, is sure to say, "Oh, Tommy loves his little sister. Of course, he handles her roughly unless I am around and he's not as good tempered as he used to be. To relieve his pain, yet very smart lines. All eyes turned to look at her as she shed her little brown jacket for dancing, for she certainly was a picture in that gown."

Both Hutton girls were in the same party with Mrs. Eleanor Hutton Sturges wearing a most becoming electric blue satin, which made her blue eyes blue, and her fair hair more blue spun gold.

She wore the handsomest long earrings of diamonds and platinum. Her hair was drawn back into a big knot which looked like a figure eight, going cross-wise instead of up and down.

At the Waldorf-Astoria the other evening Dorothy Legg wore one of the season's favorite colors, emerald green. It was a satin dress with a strapped back neckline and sleeveless, but her little doorman sleeve jacket was the same green satin.

SPORT WEAR BRIGHTER

Sports things grow gayer as the autumn wanes. Out at the West Hills race meet, Mrs. Robert Strawbridge Jr. looked stunning in a strawberry colored tulle dress. This kind of dress more gluten than that made from winter wheat and therefore retains the gas which develops in the bread dough better than pastry flour made from winter wheat.

Following is a rule which will make two loaves of bread with explicit instructions telling you just how to go about it.

BREAD

Two cups scalded milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon lard, 2½ teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 cakes compressed yeast, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 6 cups flour.

Put butter, lard, sugar and salt into a large mixing bowl. Add scalded milk and cool to lukewarm temperature. In the meantime soften yeast cake in water which has been boiled and cooled to lukewarm temperature, adding teaspoon sugar to water. When milk is lukewarm add dissolved yeast cake.

Add three cups of flour and beat until smooth. Add two more cups of flour, cutting it in with a knife until thoroughly mixed.

Just enough to make the dough of such consistency that it can be kneaded without sticking to the board. Knead until the dough is smooth and springy. Put into an oiled mixing bowl, cover with a clean cloth and large plate or cover.

Put in a warm place and leave it until it is double in bulk. It will take about one hour. Then cut through and through with a case knife and knead into a smooth ball. Make into two loaves and let these rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Put into a hot oven for fifteen minutes. Then reduce the heat and bake in a moderate oven for forty-five minutes longer.

The temperature of the dough rising should be carefully watched. Between 75 and 80 degrees Fahrenheit should be maintained throughout the whole process.

After the dough has risen the first time to double its bulk it can be "cut down" and kept in the refrigerator for a day or longer. Remember that it will take the chilled dough longer to rise when made into loaves, and bake in a moderate oven for forty-five minutes longer.

Before us is a native hut. Soon our pilot spies a level field, and we fly gently to the ground. It seems that no one has watched our landing. Neither man nor house is to be seen as we gaze around the field, but a few hundred yards away we notice small wooden huts, and decide to go that way.

After walking through the woods for a few minutes, we reach an open space, and before us is a native hut. There are no walls to the hut—it is just a roof set on poles. The people who live in it are in plain view. A man steps forth to greet us, and we are pleased when he speaks to us in English. We tell him about the signs our we are making, and he replies, "are jaguam and jaguam." The South American Indians are invited to partake of a simple meal, and after we have washed our hands and faces, we sit down to eat beans, sweet potatoes, coconuts and corn bread.

"Will you tell us something about the wild animals of the Guianas?" I ask our kind host.

Among the most dangerous of them, he replies, "are jaguam and jaguam. These large, fierce cats seldom go out of their way to fight with a man, but they are not afraid to fight if there seems to be reason. Jaguam sometimes leave their forest homes to go down to the pasture land along the coast to kill cattle. That is another reason we do not like them."

"There are huge snakes in the Guianas and the box constrictor is one of the worst. It climbs trees in search of birds or furry animals which it can crush."

"Box constrictors seldom grow to a length of more than ten feet, but the anaconda gets to be much larger. I have seen one twenty-two feet long, and I have been told that some anacondas get to be thirty feet long."

"Do anacondas attack people?"

Early inquiries.

"Yes, they do, once in a while, but their usual victims are birds and four-footed beasts. Anacondas lie in wait near water, but box constrictors prefer the woods."

Love Unlocks The Door

By ANNIE S. SWAN

She was looking remarkably well in a black silk frock, which her own hands had fashioned, and which showed off the delicate fairness of her skin to perfection. She wore a soft fall of white lace across her breast, and had a sweet, dainty look, which she noted. At the same time he was puzzled by her natural expression, which indicated nothing unusual.

"There you are, Gilbert, a little earlier than I expected. How are you?" He took her by the arm and drew her into the room, where he shut the door.

"I'm bowled over for the moment, Lily," he answered. "Can you tell me how that infernal spy, Humphrey Gerard, managed to poke his nose in here? Did you know she was anywhere? Did you know she was any relation to the Ingles, and that she knew all about my people, though she doesn't now they are mine, of course?"

Lily laughed a little, as she might have been amused at a comedy in which she had no part. "I've known her for more than a month, and she's a relative of the Ingles. I never told you, but one day Miss Ingles came here to see Miss Fiddes. She was out, and I spoke to her at the door. She remembered me."

Horse started at her in dumb dismay. "It's a horribly ghastly complication, and you ought to have told me at once, that we could have cleared out. You are not playing the game, Lily."

"I didn't think of it. I was too comfortable with Miss Fiddes, and what did it matter anyhow? She is an unsuspecting old soul, and as for Miss Ingles, she thought I was paying a call here the same as herself."

"Did you speak to her?"

"Why, of course, she remembered me at once. I didn't tell her I was living here, stupid, and she offered to drive me back to town in her carriage—two horses, Glibbie, and a footman on the box, but I didn't accept it, which was very self-denying of me, especially as I happened to be going out to my aunt's that very day."

"I thought you promised me you wouldn't go up."

"I'm only flesh and blood, Glibbie, besides, I had business to do that day—business which couldn't wait. I don't trust you, Lily; there's some underhand business going on which I don't like."

"I can say the same thing, Gilbert. I've known her for ever so long that being was like you told me about it being your brother Walter who is engaged to Miss Ingles. Miss Fiddes told me it was the second son, and my aunt told me too."

"You've been to see your aunt, then, in spite of all my entreaties?"

"Yes, and I'm going back, perhaps, to-morrow."

"Perhaps you've seen your father and your sister, too, and the rest of the people who live in that horrible place. Perhaps they're all interested in this house, now, and know all about us," he said with a sneer.

"Perhaps they do," she said indifferently. "But they don't know it from me. I've only seen my Aunt Isabel once, but I told her the whole of it wouldn't matter to you. And I want to know what you're getting her providing ready, for she's placed the most of her order with my Aunt Isabel. I could have had some of it to see if I'd liked," she said with a note of irony in her voice. "Now whether it is you or me who is going to write to Blaritz?"

He sat down, tugging violently at his moustache, his eyes telling the dark thoughts of his mind. He was completely in her power; there was not the smallest loophole of escape. From under his veiled lids he eyed her, marveling at the quiet assurance with which she spoke, and thinking how a word from him would shatter it. But he could not speak it yet; he needed further time to think and plan how he could best get himself out of the horrible depths to which he had sunk. Again and again he inwardly cursed the stupendous folly which had arranged the matter so poorly. It all came of being too soft and yielding where a woman was concerned.

"You're determined to force my hand, I see, Lily. Well, you'll be sorry for it," he said spitefully. "I'm in a hurry, I can afford to wait a little longer if it's going to be any use to you or anybody. It's Miss Ingles."

Uncle Wiggily's Secret

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Uncle Wiggily and Little Bub the rainbow boy, were running over the fields, through the woods, up hill and down hill. They were running away from the Bob Cat, who couldn't get them. "Not that I think he will chase us after what happened," said the rabbit gentleman with a laugh, "but it is just as well to be careful."

"Oh, sure!" agreed Little Bub. "Safety first every time!"

What had happened was this. Uncle Wiggily and Little Bub had gone adventuring, but first Mr. Longears had to go to the store for Nurse Jane. What he bought was a secret, even from Little Bub. Though when the Bob Cat tried to catch Uncle Wiggily and the rainbow boy, like a big white throw what looked like a big white round snowball at the Bob Cat, who ran away because he didn't want to catch cold in his ribs.

"But it wasn't a snowball I threw at the Bob Cat," said Uncle Wiggily as he ran along beside Bub.

"What was it?" asked the rainbow boy.

"That was the secret, but since you have seen part of it I'll tell you the rest," said Uncle Wiggily. "Listen Bub, it was only a cotton ball I threw at the Bob Cat, but it looked like snow."

"I'll go to sleep," said the rainbow boy.

"A cotton ball?" asked the rainbow boy. "Why was that?"

"Because Nurse Jane sent me to the store to get a roll of white, fluffy cotton," said Mr. Longears. "There was a special bargain sale where I could get for her a big bunch of 20-cent cotton for 19 cents. So I did. She told me to keep it a secret and I did until I had to take some of the cotton out of the package and make it into a pretend snowball to throw at the Bob Cat."

"That's when I saw the secret," said Little Bub.

"Yes, that's right," agreed Uncle Wiggily.

"I don't see anything very secret about going to the store to buy fluffy cotton," went on the rainbow boy. "Mr. Longears often sends me to the store to buy cotton but it isn't a secret."

"Well, this was different," whispered Uncle Wiggily, as he and Bub walked along, slowly now, for the Bob Cat was left far behind. "You see I made some of that cotton look like a snowball and Nurse Jane is going to make some of it look like a whole field of snow. It has to do with Christmas and that's why it's secret."

"Christmas!" exclaimed Little Bub, his blue eyes open wide. "Did you say Christmas?"

"Yes, I said Christmas," laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I might go further and say 'Oh, Oh! A Christmas tree!'"

"Yes," went on Uncle Wiggily. "It will be long now. And since I have told you part of the secret I may as well tell you the rest. The reason Nurse Jane sent me to get white cotton is that when Santa Claus gets ready to leave presents on the Christmas tree that I am going to set up, my muskrat lady housekeeper wants to spread a lot of cotton on the floor to look like snow at the North Pole where Santa Claus lives. She is going to sprinkle sparkling stuff on the cotton so it will glitter like the stars and lights and Santa Claus will be glad for it. It will make him think of the North Pole."

"Oh, fine!" said Little Bub. "So that's the secret of the white cotton snowball, is it?"

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggily. "It is. Mr. Whitewash, the Polar Bear gentleman, is going to lend Nurse Jane some icicles to hang around the Christmas tree and he will also give us some of the sparkling stuff. Oh, it's going to be a fine Christmas in my hollow stump bungalow!"

"I'm sure it will," said Little Bub. "And thank you very much, Uncle Wiggily, for telling me the secret. I'm not going to tell anybody."

"No, don't tell Christmas," said the rabbit gentleman. "Then he saw that the rainbow boy looked and Mr. Longears asked:

"What's the matter, Bub?"

"I wish I had a secret," was the answer. "Think, Wiggily, Bub was on 'would you mind sitting down here a little while and waiting while I go in the woods to look for a secret?'"

"Not at all," answered Mr. Longears politely. "Go ahead, Little Bub. I hope you find a secret. I'll stay here, rest my head on the cotton and go to sleep. When you find your secret give a shout."

"I will," promised the little rainbow boy, and off he went into the woods while Mr. Longears went on. Away and away, past the bushes, past the trees and past the brook went Little Bub, looking for his secret. And all of a sudden he found it. He told you about it to-morrow night when the story will be named Uncle Wiggily and Bub's Secret. And I do hope you will not let the milk pitcher pour vinegar on the sugar cookie to make it taste like a lemon pie.

Associated Press

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 15.—Albert J.

Baron, nee Guggenheim, Hollywood's aristocratic walter, is out of a job again and announces he will sell his services for the next six and one-half years, at the end of which he is scheduled to inherit $1,000,000.

Baron, grandson of Bernard Baron,

English tobacco king, who was discovered several days ago lugging trays in a fashionable Hollywood cafe to earn a living after the trustees of his

London estate had cut off an income approximately $1,000 a month because they decided he was wasting his money, quit his job at the time because of attendant publicity.

The cafe hired him again as a food checker. Yesterday evening he said he

get a $100 suit of clothes out of

"back."

The twenty-three-year-old heir was born the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert

Guggenheim, of the famous New York family, but dropped his last name when he came here. He married Elizabeth Uggell and news of the marriage prevented him from entering the Navy

Academy at Annapolis. He tried the films, but with little success.

Baron may be a social secretary, horse trainer, swimming instructor or club manager. He will not be a gigolo because he wants to keep in the good graces of his wife.

The responsibility for this serious loss to all farmers rests with the British

Justice would demand that this amount should be repaid by the govern-

MORE TOLMIE-POOLEY FIFFLE

To the Editor:—I have read with much interest an article that appeared in your worthy paper, The Victoria

Times, on the 11th inst. entitled "Feed

Cost Cut: Tolmie's Aim."

Our Premier has ridden himself of another announcement. This is an announcement to mislead the people of this province into the belief that he has plans to bring prosperity to Vancouver Island and British Columbia by getting poultry producers by getting them cheaper feed prices.

Some very plain and candid truths are going to be dealt with herein.

Whether he knows or not, Hon. Dr.

Tolmie knows that he cannot one day betray those who were instrumental in placing him in power—then, when their assistance is again urgently required, come around and "kiss the babies" and put us on the backs and tell us what fine fellows we are and what he is going to do for us. Those poor, cheap "wheat-needs" tactics he laid away in moth balls and camphor years ago.

I wish to ask Hon. Dr. Tolmie whether he places such a poor estimate on the mental calibre of the egg and poultry producers and the dairymen of this province as to expect them to forget his absolute betrayal of their interest in the fall of 1929? Does he think for one moment we have forgotten the celebrated milk investigation inquiry as Hon. Mr. Pooley would have us believe? He would have us believe that the liquor control board inquiry and report? If he thinks so I am sorry because it is just another example of the difference between the completely out of touch he is and has been with his people.

When Dr. Tolmie makes this announcement, as contained in your paper on the 11th inst. he knows and

I charge him directly with knowing that it is just another effort in his effort to bring political favor to the people and to bring the milk industry back to the same racket as the former government, which he and all his cabinet so fiercely condemned. The condemnation of the McCree employment on the freight rates matter. Hon. Dr.

Tolmie perpetuated that racket simply by substituting Leon Ladner for Mr.

McCree. The only difference being that

Jerry McCree did achieve results that

Ladner has not done so.

Getting down to brass tacks—

"cheaper feed prices." The Hon. Dr.

Tolmie tells us about what the farmers at Red Deer, Alberta, are paying for feed. Why does he not tell us what our position has been? Ashamed to, no doubt. That would not fit fittingly frame the Leon Ladner picture. The Premier

"is going"—yes, always "going," but never arrives. (The Hon. Doctor as a "goose" man is a word he uses—"go-se" to reduce freight rates. Fine. But what will the cost to the province be?

Just another staggering bill of expense.

His efforts now are just four years too late. Putting the milk industry back to the same racket as the former government, which he and all his cabinet so fiercely condemned. The

ment on the freight rates matter. Hon. Dr.

IMMIGRATION TOTAL SLUMPS

Auto Driver Is Freed Of Blame

Entries in Canada Down and Deportation Up During 1932

Immigration to Canada for the fiscal year which ended in March has dropped to 25,752, less than a third of what it was in 1931, and deportations have increased approximately 60 per cent, a report on the subject received by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce to-day shows.

Deportations totaled 7,025, compared with 4,376 the previous year. Returning Canadian citizens, mostly from the United States, numbered 15,411.

The figures which have just been released from Ottawa show that with few exceptions all the present-day immigration from the continent of Europe consists of wives and unmarried children joining family heads shown to be established in Canada and in a position to look after their dependants.

The total is in striking contrast to the immigration figure of 1928, when 362,459 new citizens came to the Dominion.

The report provides the information that immigrants from the United States double the number from all other countries combined. Of the total of 25,752 admitted, 7,333 were from the British Isles, 14,397 from the United States and 25,752 from other countries.

WOMAN DIES FROM BURNS

Mrs. Harold Goodmans died on Sunday at the Royal Jubilee Hospital as a result of burns caused by coal oil two days earlier at her home on Dunford Road, Langford.

Mrs. Goodmans was alone in the house at the time of the accident and was a mass of flames when she ran to her husband, working nearby. It is believed that her dress had been used to clean a bed because spilled on her clothing.

The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Colwood Anglican Church, interment being in the cemetery. Rev. H. S. J. Payne officiated.

Mrs. Goodmans was born in Saskatchewan twenty-four years ago and came to Vancouver Island twenty years ago. She is survived by her husband, Harold; one daughter, Myrtle;

Dr. Young has been six fellowships in British, Canadian and American health institutions, which have been conferred on him during a long period of years in public service.

The last official outing of the year for the Vancouver Island section of the Empire Club of Canada was held over the week-end. The members sailed to the Lake-of-the-Seven-Hills Camp. One party, under Thomas Goodlake, ascended Empress Mountain on Saturday, but the weather was so bad that a considerable party was delayed about the camp under the direction of C. L. Harrison, outings' convenor, including fishing, touch football, and the club's hut. Four of the six windows were put in place.

Overlapping of bus services from Hanesy to Vancouver has been avoided through a meeting of interested parties with officials of the Department of Public Works. Pacific Stages Ltd. complained that Pottruff Buses, running from Mission to Hanesy and then to Vancouver, picked up passengers between Hanesy and the Coast. The matter was referred to the advisory board of the department, which ruled that the Pottruff lines were entitled to all business between Mission and Hanesy and could pick up passengers at the date of the week-end. The date of the week-end was taken in the preliminary figures on the subject issued to-day by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. It shows a smaller percentage of female wage earners employed than male wage earners. Roughly one out of every six male workers and one out of every fifteen female workers were unemployed at the date of the census. Out of 2,017,695 male workers, 1,094,612, or 54.3 per cent, of the total were at work. Out of a total of 547,273 female wage earners in Canada when the census was taken 498,599, or 91.1 per cent were at work.

The full report for the month shows 115 ships in and 111 out with a total tonnage of 387,826 deep-sea. Foreign coastwise arrivals were 119, with 112 departures. Total tonnage of 296,158. Local coastwise figures were 1,314 departures, net tonnage 813,141.

New Westminster reports the Japanese freighter Sa. Junyo Maru and the Donaldson Line freighter Modavia in port loading.

The Belgian steamer Mercier, now here to Harvey Shipping Co. Limited, is making her first return since October. The full report for the month shows 19 ships in and 19 out, on which date she sailed from Vancouver. Five days out she ran into a terrific gale and her cargo partly shifted. A fortnight later she was delayed by boiler trouble, but she arrived at Antwerp late in February with the cargo intact.

Reardon Smith Line freighter Madras City is in to T. A. Lee & Molway and Anglo-Canadian Shipping Co. to load full with grain for United Kingdom. The ship is making her first visit since she sailed on Christmas Eve, 1931, with a grain cargo from this port.

Since her departure Capt. J. Stroom has rounded the world with the ship. Arriving home in February, he sailed again for Mexico, then to China, Japan and Manchuria, and thence via Suez Canal home.

The company freighter Orient City is also in port, arriving to Empire Shipping Co. to load wheat. Her last departure from Vancouver was December 4, 1931.

Hungerford Soon To Be Named President

Holds Office of Acting-president Pending Legislation Defining Railroad Policy

New Directing Head of C.N.R. Is Man of Action—Not Words

In every respect apart from the actual conferment of the title, Samuel J. Hungerford, who was made acting president on the retirement of Sir Henry Thornton, is president of the Canadian National Railways. Within a short time the official announcement will be made that Mr. Hungerford has been made president of the government-operated line.

This was disclosed by members of his immediate entourage yesterday prior to the departure for Vancouver on the return trip east.

The announcement will come, it is expected, after legislation has been put through at Ottawa defining the railway policy of the government-owned system following upon the recommendations of the Duff Commission on transportation.

For the fact that legislation is pending, it is said, the announcement of the appointment of Mr. Hungerford to the presidency would have been made before this. The announcement is merely being held over as a matter of courtesy pending a definite decision regarding the future of the road.

LOGICAL MAN FOR JOB

From his long association with the railroad business, he having passed through every stage from apprentice to directing head of the system, Mr. Hungerford is recognized as the logical man to handle a big job. When his advice was sought, he informed the commission on transportation that the C.N.R. could save itself provided a policy of rigid economy was followed and in his understatement but business-like way proceeded to show the country how a difficult job should be handled.

Mr. Hungerford is a quiet, reserved man, but he is essentially a man of action and he accomplishes things without saying a lot about it.

Through his present inspection tour he has impressed newspapermen with his capabilities and his sincerity of purpose. He is always ready to talk on railway matters and never refused to answer intelligent questions put to him by newspaper interviewers.

IS LAID TO REST

Rev. A. M. Acheson-Lyle conducted the funeral service yesterday afternoon for Martinus Synas, whose death occurred on Friday. Many friends were present at the service and beautiful floral offerings were received. The following acted as pallbearers: A. Brockhouse, W. Mulvihill, J. W. Thomas, L. George, P. D. H. Hale. The remains were laid to rest at Royal Oak Burial Park.

NO LIQUOR WORRY YET

United States Brewers and Distillers May Underseal Government Liquor Stores Here

Size of Excise Tax to Be Imposed in United States of Concern to Officials

Officials of the British Columbia Liquor Board have as yet given little thought to the situation arising in the United States through the repeal of bone-dry laws in various states, but it is admitted that British Columbia may feel the effects of the reversal of sentiment across the border in more ways than one.

While distilleries to the south have been steadily manufacturing and bottling for the drug trade, and British distillers also have a huge supply of whisky in readiness for the anticipated American market, the Columbia distilleries have millions of gallons of seven-year-old whiskies in large warehouses in the Vancouver area ready to ship across the border to meet the first rush of orders.

But these factors cause no worry to liquor board officials. What they are interested in is to make sure that the Washington government, which is carrying on a campaign to reduce the local liquor tax, will not be able to find their way into the hands of bootleggers. This, they believe, will be accomplished by the bone-dry law. This illegal trade will be broken up by the internal revenue tax on American whisky, which is much smaller than the Dominion government tax. In that event, the smuggling of American whisky into Canada on a large scale may be looked for, ultimately forcing the federal government to reduce its excise tax in order to meet the changed conditions.

The alternative, should Ottawa lower its excise, would be for the liquor board to reduce its prices, taking a much smaller profit. In order to combat the illegal trade in American whisky, this, of course, would have a material effect on British Columbia municipalities, which are dependent on the liquor tax for a large part of their revenue. These profits, it may be said, are expected to suffer to some extent from the loss of American tourist travel.

President-elect Roosevelt, in a radio speech shortly before election day, stated he intended to raise $500,000,000 in revenue from beer sales. He said the saloon was gone forever. The immediate effect of this is seen in statements by several governors of states which repealed the bone-dry law, that liquor act enforcement could cease. Seattle newspapers are carrying large advertisements by brokers offering for sale several new breweries which may endeavor to invade the British Columbia field by cutting prices.

While another revision of prices for liquor in British Columbia is due in two weeks, W. K. Kennedy, liquor controller, is admitted to-day that the internal revenue tax on American whisky is much lower than those imposed by the Ottawa Government. It might be necessary in the somewhat distant future to again revise prices to meet the situation that may be created by smuggling of whiskies across the border.

BANKERS' TRIALS AGAIN DELAYED

Habeas corpus proceedings by Stuart Henderson to obtain the release of Charles Wallace, veteran banker, whose extradition to United States to face federal charges of grand larceny in connection with the affairs of four Washington banks and their holding corporation, was ordered by Judge Lampman recently, were to-day set off until Thursday morning by Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald in the Supreme Court.

Following their appearance in the Supreme Court, Mr. Wallace and his son, Ralph Wallace, in charge of their defense, moved down to Judge Lampman's court, where the extradition trial of Ralph Wallace on similar banking charges is still under way. In the absence of Mr. Henderson, Prosecutor C. L. Harrison suggested a further adjournment of the extradition trial until next Friday. This was tentatively agreed to by the judge, but Mr. Wallace will have to appear in court to-morrow morning as he had formerly been arranged, so any possible technical difficulties over the adjournment may be avoided.

Many sorrowing friends attended yesterday afternoon when Rev. O. L. Jull officiated at the funeral service for Francis James Hammett. The bearers were: S. Russell, E. Peterson, W. J. Laver, J. Barker, P. C. Silwell and J. Smith. Many beautiful floral tributes covered the casket and hearse.

FUNERAL TO-MORROW

The funeral of Edward George, who passed away yesterday at St. Joseph's Hospital, will take place to-morrow morning, leaving the family residence at 8:30 o'clock. At 9 o'clock mass will be celebrated at the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Songhees Reserve, by Rev. Father A. B. Wood. The remains will be laid to rest in the Esquimalt Cemetery.

Birthday Greetings Are Extended To-day To—

FRANK V. HOBBS
CAPT. CHARLES M. C. FLEMING

Frank Victor Hobbs, chairman of the Saanich School Board, yesterday passed the seventieth milestone on life's highway. Mr. Hobbs has been the principal driving force in securing construction by Saanich of its own high school system. Institution this year of scholarship bursaries in Saanich, coupled with institution of a system of fees, realize plans of the first election platform offered by Mr. Hobbs in 1922. Mr. Hobbs was born in Burton, Somersetshire, England. He came to Victoria in 1889, and was first employed on erection of the west coast telegraph line. In 1890 he obtained rights to coal lands near Ladysmith, now the Extension Mine. This acquisition resulted in a famous lawsuit with the late James Dunsmuir, in which Mr. Hobbs won the final appeal to the House of Lords. After being in the furniture business in Victoria for several years, he went to Port Renfrew to look after extensive timber holdings he secured in that district. Mr. Hobbs returned in 1908, and made his home at Cadboro Bay, where he has been postmaster since 1916. He was a member of the Saanich Council for two years during the regime of Reeve Joseph Nicholson. He has also served as president of the British Columbia Trustees' Association.

Capt. Charles M. C. Fleming, commander of the cableship Restorator, which is stationed at the Outer Wharf, and is a familiar sight to Victorians, celebrated his birthday to-day. Captain Fleming was born in Glasgow. He has followed the sea for the last twenty years. A little over five years ago Capt. Fleming came to a famous lawsuit with the Restorator, which is owned by Mackay interests and the Commercial Cable Company. Since being in command he has been a good money saver in taking up and repairing cable between Bamfield and Australia. Fishing is his chief pastime, and the little spare time that he has is spent with a rod and fly. He is a member of the Rotary Club, and lives on Sea View Road, near Cadboro Bay.

War-time Canadian Premier Cautions Government Against Overspending

Canadian Press
Montreal, Nov. 15.—"Wastefulness has become a vice of the North American continent," declared Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden to-day, in addressing the fifth annual meeting of the re-elected directors of Barclays Bank (Canada). In the absence of any definite apparent schemes which would lead to an improvement in world and national conditions the war-time Prime Minister counselled the application of thrift as most necessary general principle and essential reduction.

"The lesson of thrift and saving may well be commended to the attention of our governments since expenditure and consequent taxation have increased in the past few years, and the increase of population and of wealth. In the past we have not consistently followed the path of hard work and saving. The hard experience of the war years should never be forgotten," he asserted.

Sir Robert found the people of Canada facing troubles with a "firm heart and high hope" and said that although a possible recovery from the throes of depression had been stayed last year by world-wide financial crisis which developed into panic there were signs now conditions had risen at least from a panic back into a depression.

WAR DEBTS

The future prosperity and civilization of the world were dependent on "world conditions, reduction of armaments, the final disposition of war reparations and war debts and the termination of the world's peoples to substitute judicial arbitration for war's violence and destruction."

Of the Imperial Conference Sir Robert said it "dispositions, reciprocal and otherwise, constitute a valuable beginning and a fair foundation for fuller development of trade."

BANK'S PROGRESS

Of Barclay's Bank (Canada) the president found it had made "substantial progress during the past year and had already gained a place in the financial and economic structure of the Dominion."

The following retiring directors were re-elected: H. P. Allison, Sir Robert Borden, J. S. Crossley, C. S. MacDonald, A. A. Magee, Arthur B. Purvis, W. O. Stevenson and Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Premier of Quebec. Sir Robert Borden was re-elected president and Arthur Purvis vice-president.

NEW PROGRAMME FOR VAUDEVILLE

Non-stop Variety at Crystal Garden This Week Has Many Entertaining Numbers

The second week of non-stop vaudeville season at the Crystal Garden Theatre opened yesterday evening to an enthusiastic, although not very large, audience. Some of the artists of last week are appearing again this week in entirely new turns, notably Miss Mabel Wells, Capt. Eric Chalmers, Miss Gertrude Partridge, Miss Daisy Brownman and Marguerite Hinkman. Newcomers are Reg-Stefor, a talented whistler; Tiger Singh, Indian strong man; Cliff Prescott, line bass singer; Billy Heim, tenor, and several others. It is hoped that this new venture will be well-supported, as it supplies a want long felt in Victoria for light and cheap entertainment.

Weather conditions have been particularly bad during the last ten days yet many people have braved the elements to come and see what is promised to be a show well worth seeing. The aim of the management has been to please all tastes. It has been de-

WIDEN ALBERTA RELIEF SCHEME

Single Jobless Over 18 and Living With Indigent Families Are Now Included

Canadian Press
Calgary, Nov. 15.—The Alberta Relief Commission to-day announced all Calgary single unemployed over eighteen years of age living with indigent families were included in the relief scheme operated by the provincial government. The announcement follows efforts of Calgary city officials to have the commission define the word "homeless" in their statement two weeks ago revealing the government's intention to take over support of single jobless. It was claimed Calgary single jobless were being discriminated against by the commission, but A. A. MacKenzie, chairman, to-day declared the city's single jobless were included in the plan as long as they were over eighteen years of age and members of indigent families.

Mr. MacKenzie declared there would be no provision for other unemployed and he urged all workers from outside Calgary to return to their home municipalities to receive aid.

After a rough voyage of eleven and a half days across the North Pacific, the American Mail liner President Jefferson docked at the Rihet Pier here this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from ports in the Philippine Islands, China and Japan. She was posted to sail for Seattle at 4 o'clock.

The Jefferson rolled and pitched most of the 4,400 miles from Yokohama. Capt. A. O. Lustie, commander, said the weather was typical of November. The weather commented to get rough a few hours out of Yokohama and kept up until the ship was within a few hours of this port.

There were 300 tons of general cargo for Victoria and a heavy consignment of Canadian mails. Two special class and a party of Oriental steamer passengers disembarked here. For Seattle there were twenty-two first and special class passengers and sixty steerage passengers. Cargo amounted to 1,900 tons, including 2,000 barrels of raw silk.

Passengers aboard the liner included David Trachberg, merchant of Toronto and Montreal, returning from a business trip to the Orient; G. F. Driffin, a Dr. F. R. Crawford, missionaries from Shanghai, the latter accompanied by his wife; and two tiny Japanese nuns, Sister Bernice Hataumi and Sister Fujiko Watanabe, going to the eastern United States to enter school.

B.C.F.A. Apology Is Satisfactory To Victoria Moguls

Local Football Officials, J. R. Jones, Joe Bloom, J. Mesher, J. Ewing and Dr. A. Poyntz, Accept Explanation of Provincial Association Over Recent Suspension; Resolution Released for Publication Before Confirmation of Full Council

Complete satisfaction over the apology made by the British Columbia Football Association was expressed today by the five former members of the Lower Island Football Association. The written apology was received yesterday by Joe Bloom, J. R. Jones, J. Mesher, J. Ewing and Dr. A. Poyntz, and was also tendered to the press of Victoria and Vancouver.

The apology was received following considerable correspondence between the B.C.F.A. and the Lower Island Football Association. The trouble arose when officials of the B.C.F.A. announced they had suspended the Victoria moguls from organized football. The Victoria representatives claimed they could not be suspended from an organization to which they were not affiliated.

The apology follows: "The executive of the B.C.F.A. wish to apologize to Messrs. Bloom, Jones, Mesher, Ewing and Poyntz for a statement in the following words: 'Former members of the L.I.F.A. board (Messrs. Bloom, Jones, Mesher, Ewing and Poyntz) suspended from this association, which was given to The Vancouver Daily Province and The Vancouver Daily Sun, on September 27, 1932. In considering the matter at the meeting on September 26 the fact that these gentlemen had resigned from the L.I.F.A. before associating themselves with the Pacific Coast Football Association, was overlooked.'

"The resolution for their suspension was passed at a meeting at which quorum was not present and the item was, contrary to the intention of the meeting, released for publication prior to confirmation by the full council."

"We sincerely regret the publication of the above statement and take this opportunity of stating that the executive of the B.C.F.A. had no right to suspend these gentlemen and that they have not been guilty of any ungentlemanly or unsportsmanlike or unconstitutional conduct and that they acted fairly, honestly and within their rights in associating themselves with the Pacific Coast Football Association."

"B.C. FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION. A. LLOYD CRAIG, President. R. FORDIE, Secretary."

Rugged Maroons and Boston Will Clash In N.H.L. Feature

Two of Most Powerful Clubs in Major Hockey Play To-night at Boston; Bruins Undefeated; New York Americans Visit Detroit for Game With Red Wings

Four teams of the National Hockey League will engage in important games to-night. At Boston the Bruins will be hosts to the rugged Montreal Maroons, while "Bullet Joe" Simpson's New York Americans will make their second start of the season against the Detroit Red Wings at the motor city. Three of the four clubs, Boston, Americans and Detroit, are undefeated to date.

The game at Boston will see two of the most rugged teams in major hockey in action. The Maroons have established a well-known record for their bruising type of play, while Boston have gone back to the rugged style after an unsuccessful year of relying on speed to carry them through. This season Manager Art Ross has built up another heavy squad and as a result penalties are likely to be profuse in tonight's clash. After getting out in camp in view of the fact that the New York club was only able to tie the Black Hawks at Chicago Sunday.

MUST DEVELOP, PREMIER SAYS

B.C. Cannot "Save Its Way" Out of Depression, He Tells Saanich Conservatives

Bruhn Urges More Trust of People in Politicians and Tolerance Towards Them

British Columbia has now reached the position where it cannot "save its way out" of the depression and should take the way to abundant development, Premier Tomin told a public meeting under Ward Four Saanich Conservative Association yesterday evening.

"Productive expenditure is fully justified in a country such as this," the Premier said. "We cannot save our way through a depression or bring about prosperity in that way. Every effort is being made by the government to develop some millions of acres of land to create openings for people and provide employment."

As himself the member for Saanich, the Premier told of how the people of the riding had been well looked after with large public works expenditures there. He said the government had expended $243,280 on Saanich's roads, $44,327 in ferries and $40,320 on relief work in the district. Besides that the government had taken over and assumed full maintenance of the twenty-four miles of highway in the district. Also, he recalled, how the government had built a new road to Butchart's Gardens and a new Verder avenue stretch from the main West Highway to the Broadview ferry.

The Premier explained how these expenditures had been well justified with more than 3,000 cars a day passing over the East and West Saanich highways.

Great prosperity and rapid development for Canada when recovery sets in and the benefits of the Imperial Economic Conference trade arrangements begin to be felt, were predicted by Premier Tomin.

He went on to urge union government for British Columbia. He declared he intended to reorganize his cabinet after the next session of the Legislature and then go to the country with the best selection of men available, regardless of their party creeds.

URGES TRUST OF POLITICIANS
Hon. R. W. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works, appealed to the people to disarm unfounded suspicion towards all men in public office and their administration of affairs.

"There has been in most countries an habitual mistrust of men in office, mistaking against efforts at good government and placing under a severe handicap those entrusted by the people with the administration of their joint affairs," Mr. Bruhn went on.

"The people of this country can have good government if they work for it. There is nothing which so destroys all efforts in public life and in business than to regard any man who enters public life with suspicion."

START RELIEF WORK MONDAY

Esquimalt Project Arranged at Special Council Meeting Yesterday Evening
Look to Governments to Match $2,075 Fund Under Relief Legislation

Work on Esquimalt's new relief project which will develop Bullen's Park, on Lyall Street, near Fraser, into a football field and playground, will start next Monday when the first gang starts work at $3 a day. The municipality has collected $2,075 for the project and hopes to have the provincial and federal governments contribute dollar for dollar to that sum, making a little over $6,000 for the scheme.

Details of the plan were arranged at a camera meeting of the Esquimalt Council yesterday. The engineer was instructed to order drain tiles and other materials necessary for the work. The tiles will be secured from the B.C. Cement Company, at a $35 rebate.

All materials and tools to be used on the job will be purchased by the council from the provincial fund. The first gang selected yesterday evening numbered between twenty and twenty-five. Gangs of similar sizes will be used throughout the project, which is expected to furnish work for the jobless for the next three months. All gangs will be selected by the council as a whole and all men chosen must give fair value for their pay.

The money collected during the drive has been paid into the municipal coffers and will be considered as municipal funds. Hence the council hopes to secure equal grants from both governments for this work which is definitely a relief scheme. The original fund has been left open and further donations are expected.

Work will include clearing, grading, draining and general improvement. All work will be carried on under the supervision of H. F. Bourne, municipal engineer.

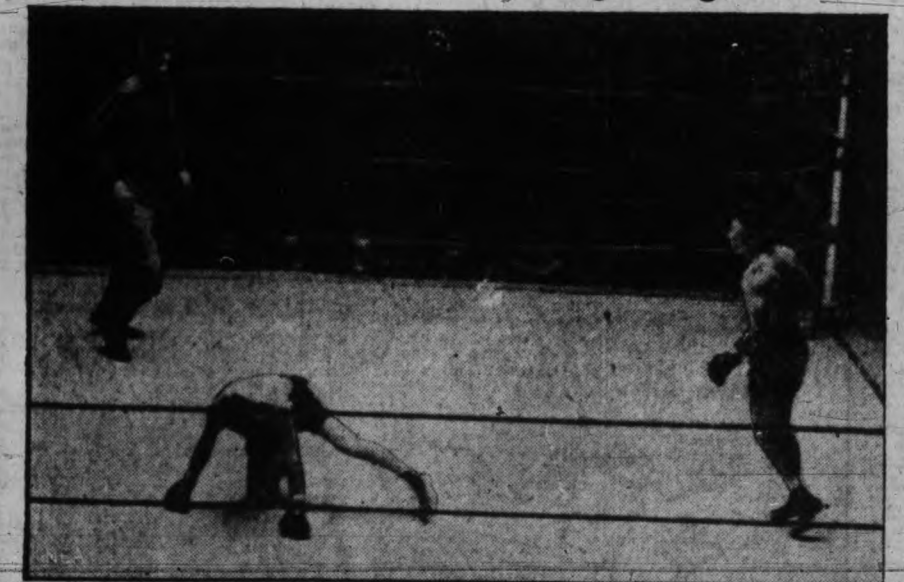

BAY HOOPSTERS TO HOLD DANCE

Basketball players of the James Bay Athletic Association will entertain their friends and followers of the game in general at their annual dance in the clubhouse on Friday evening.

The function will start at 9.30 o'clock. Special music will be provided for dancing and prizes will be awarded. The event is arranged by Miss E. Johnston, Miss E. Milne, Miss G. Taylor, Miss Edna Matthews, F. Elliott and W. Clarke.

There being no bagmen among them, those Missouri scientists who tested an elephant in numerous ways probably forgot to check his trunk.

When Canzoneri Retained Lightweight Title

Coming on the heels of the great Walker-Schmeling fight in Madison Square Garden, the Canzoneri-Petrolie lightweight championship goes seems to prove that the fighters are finally giving the public its money's worth. Above is an action shot of the fight in which Tony repulsed the threat of the "Fargo Express" and sent Billy groping out of the ring after fifteen rounds. It shows Petrolie, left, down for a no count in the fifteenth. Canzoneri is on the right and the referee in the background.

Shall Widow Who Has Sacrificed Life to Son Marry Against His Wish? — Plenty of Hope for Pitiful Young Girl — Husband Is "Tired of Marriage"

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a widow and for the last sixteen years I have devoted my entire life to my son. I have denied myself all the indulgences and amusements that women usually have and spent all of my time and money in trying to educate my boy. He is now in college. A very fine man, who is able to provide for me and give me a good home and for whom I have a great affection, wants to marry me, but my son is very resentful of my marrying anyone. I have been putting this man off for two years and he has become tired of waiting and tells me I must make a decision in the matter and either take him or leave him. What shall I do? A. B. C.

Answer—I unhesitatingly advise you to marry your man and thereby secure a happy and safe old age for yourself. Pay no attention to your son's objections. He may pout for a little while, but he will soon get over it and see that you have done the wisest thing for him, as well as yourself.

Of course, it is natural for a petted and spoiled only child, who has monopolized his mother's love, to be jealous of any stranger who takes any part of her attention away from him. He has thought of his mother as belonging to him so completely that he can't conceive of his mother's marrying and demanding a little life of her own. He thinks all the happiness she should desire is just in ministering to him.

Perhaps the greatest shock any child ever gets is when it first realizes that its mother is a human being with a human being's natural craving for pleasure and amusement and independence.

Undoubtedly, it will give your son a jolt to find out that you are a woman as well as a mother, and a woman attractive enough for a man to be in love with, but when he cries out in protest, ask him if you are willing to forego a marriage for his sake, will he be willing to forego marriage for your sake? Ask him if he will be willing to stay at home of evenings with you and bear your company instead of going out with the other youngsters? Ask him if he will be willing to give up some girl he is in love with in order to support you and provide you with a good home?

That is the point of view that the children who object to their mother's marrying never stop to think of. They don't want mother to marry, but neither do they want to have mother as a burden upon them. Many children keep their mothers or fathers from marrying, and then resent having to have mother or father live with them. Which is natural, but not very pleasant for mamma or papa.

When a boy starts for college, his mother has done for him all she can. His dependence on her is over. His need for her is virtually gone. And she has lost him, so far as companionship is concerned. He has begun the business of life and it takes him farther and farther from her. That is all perfectly proper. The young bird should leave the home nest.

But it leaves the mother lonely and desolate, and the best thing she can possibly do under the circumstances is to marry again if she can find a suitable mate, some man whom she can love and who loves her and with whom she can re-establish her life and make a new home.

Married to a man of her own age, she finds a congenial companionship, she has somebody who is dependent upon her, somebody to get up good dinners for and to fuss over. She has the independence of being mistress of her own house and having her own position in the community, and her life has meaning and point to it, as it does not have if she is a lonely widow leading a vicarious life in the lives of her children and following them about from school to school. And it is far better for the children, because she leaves them free and untrammelled instead of being a parasite upon them.

A widow with little children may well hesitate to marry because there is always the chance of getting a stepfather who will mistreat them, but when the children are practically grown and able to defend themselves, this danger is eliminated and then she has nothing but her own choice in the matter. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a girl of sixteen and in about six months I expect to become a mother. I have a stepmother who has always disliked me very much and who is turning my father against me and I dare not think what they will do when they find out. The boy in the case is willing to marry me, but I know that he no longer loves me and is only offering to do so from a sense of duty, and I love him so much that I will commit suicide rather than marry him and spoil his life. Also, can you give me a ray of hope quickly, or is death the only way out? DESPERATE.

Answer—The Salvation Army—God bless it—opens a door of refuge for unhappy girls in your plight. You can go to the nearest one and the angels of mercy who run it will take you in and see you through your trouble.

But I think you are quixotically self-sacrificing in refusing to marry the boy simply because he is willing to do so from a sense of duty. For he has an inescapable duty in the matter, and if he has a shred of honor in his whole composition he will be happier in doing a man's part and fulfilling his obligations to his wife and his child than he will be in turning sneak and coward and quitter and leaving you to bear the whole load of shame alone. The knowledge that he was yellow enough to do a thing like that would wreck a man's life more than any marriage could.

Besides, there is an even more imperative reason why you and this boy should marry than your own feelings in the matter. You both have an obligation to your unborn child greater than you have to each other. You have no right to let that come into the world nameless, with the brand of illegitimacy upon it. Save the poor, little unfortunate creature that, at least, don't make it pay the price of your sin as long as it lives.

So, my dear child, I urge you with all the earnestness of which I am capable to marry this boy just as soon as possible. After the baby is born, you still feel that your husband does not love you and that you are sacrificing him to a duty marriage, it will be easy enough to get a divorce.

He will not have to live with you unless he wants to, but I hope that such devotion as yours, and perhaps the touch of baby hands, will revive his affection for you, and that your pathetic romance will have a happy ending. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—Mine is the old story of the girl in love with a married man. When I first met him I had many boy friends and dates. I have given them all up for him, as he is extremely jealous and says that if he can't have me no one else shall. We have gone to many places together. Every holiday finds us at many distant towns, summer resorts, etc. He is wonderful to his wife and child, but says that his responsibility ceases after he provides for them. But he never speaks of getting a divorce from his wife. The question is, what is the proper thing for me to do? Is it better for me to sacrifice my happiness for his wife and baby? Will this one affair have a marvellous effect on my life hereafter? UNHAPPY.

Answer—The only rule that any girl needs to guide her in such a situation as yours is the Golden Rule. Treat every other woman's husband as you would like some girl to treat yours.

And just as a bit of ordinary prudence, sit down and try to figure out what you are going to get out of a love affair with a married man. You can't marry him without breaking up another woman's home. Generally, the man doesn't want to marry you because he doesn't want the scandal of divorce, or the expense of supporting two wives. When you devote yourself to a married man you drive all the eligible men away, and so in the end all that you get out of it is a scandal, your lost good name and being deserted yourself in the end, for a philanderer is true to no one. Sorry business, call it. DOROTHY DIX.

Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1932

Benefic planetary aspects rule today, according to astrology. It behooves everyone to make the most of the swiftly passing day. The rule encourages progressive and independent action, but it is opposed to deserting along any radical lines. While the stars seem to indicate much good fortune for the ambitious, nature warns against foreign-born residents of the United States. There is no sign of extensive acquisition of revolutionary ideas. The trend of thought is changing toward the recognition of universal brotherhood, astrologers declare, but the advance toward the ultimate goal is slow.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the government for serious work along advancement in education and philanthropy. Persons desiring work may not be successful while this configuration prevails. There is likely to be lack of decision on the part of employers. Under this direction of the stars, projects requiring broad vision should be launched. The influence make for clear judgment and well-founded courage. Women to-day should be satisfied to perform everyday duties. The stars frown upon adventuring in business or the artistic professions. For chemists and all who deal in beverages of every sort the stars are propitious. Trade between Russia and England is likely to increase greatly, astrologers predict. The Soviet is believed to be similar to the occult scheme represented by the bee and the ant.

New York, Nov. 15.—Should the Volstead Act be modified at the short session of Congress, starting in December, The New York Sun says fourteen breweries in New York City will be ready to turn out "real beer" overnight. The newspaper says the breweries are now manufacturing near beer and that only a slight change in the brewing process will be necessary to make beer.

Arctic Patrol At Home Again After Long Summer Trip

Officials Who Made Voyage on Ss. Ungava Found Natives Healthy

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Canada's 1932 expedition to the eastern islands of the Arctic archipelago has returned after a seventy-five-day voyage on the Ss. Ungava. In many respects this year's patrol under the direction of the Department of the Interior, was outstanding among the voyages of recent years to the far north. In order to effect the greatest economy in cost the department utilized one of the Hudson Bay Company's ships on its voyage to the various trading posts, the usual itinerary being extended to enable visits to be made to the government posts on the far northern islands.

Altogether twenty-five calls were made during the 9,000-mile voyage. Beginning on Monday, July 1, the Ungava made its next stop at Cartwright on the Labrador coast, completing the 1,024 miles on July 14. From there the boat proceeded to Port Burwell at the entrance to Hudson Strait, crossed the strait to Lake Harbour on the southern shore of Wakeham Bay, moved westward to Bugby West and Wolstenholme, and then swung into the bay for calls at Cape Smith and Port Harrison on the eastern shore of the bay. At Port Harrison the farthest south point of the voyage was reached and incidentally the highest temperature of the voyage was experienced when the thermometer rose to thirty-eight degrees.

"GOODWILL" CALL

Turning northward a call was made at Southampton Island, the boat returning to Wolstenholme and then pushing on to Dorset on Baffin Island. Lake Harbour and Burwell each received a second visit before the boat was headed for Davis Strait and Baffin Bay, Pangnirtung, River Clyde, and Pond Inlet, Baffin Island; Craig Harbor, Ellesmere Island; Dundas, Devon Island, and Godhavn, Greenland, were also visited during the circuit of the northern loop of the itinerary. The visit to Godhavn was the annual call in charge of the expedition, made a personal visit to the various posts and missions at each of the ports of call in the archipelago, taking a census of the inhabitants and surveying health, wild life, and general conditions. Dr. John S. Douglas, of the Department of Penitents and National Health, held clinics at each of the northern posts and prescribed treatment whenever necessary. He reported that he was struck with the healthy conditions prevailing among the native and white inhabitants of the various posts, there having been no serious outbreaks of disease during the past year. In an effort to halt the heavy inroads being made among Eskimo boys by sickness, Dr. J. R. W. pathologist of the Health of Animals Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, inoculated dogs at all the posts.

Garnet A. Wootton, M.A., who acted as secretary to the officer in charge, and historian of the expedition, in addition to his regular duties, made observations of the solar eclipse of August 31, while the ship was approximately in latitude seventy-eight degrees north, about five miles east of Cape Sabine, Ellesmere Island. This was the most northerly point reached by the patrol. He also made a study of the aurora borealis and experienced with short wave radio equipment, gaining much valuable information.

Inspector T. V. Sandy-Wunch, in charge of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police party, inspected the various detachments and superintended the changes of personnel at the various posts. Captain T. F. Smellie was ship's master and his crew consisted of thirty-five officers and men.

Unusual ice and weather conditions prevailed particularly during the more northerly part of the voyage. The ice moved out from Pond Inlet Harbor, Baffin Island, on August 14, two weeks later than in previous years. Large fields of snow fell at River Clyde Baffin Island, on August 25, the day which the expedition arrived. Several severe storms occurred but fortunately on each occasion the expedition was in port. Heavy ice was met with and huge pans, which had not moved out this year, barred the way to Bache Peninsula, the most northerly post on the patrol. For fourteen hours the ship was manoeuvred in Smith Sound in an effort to find an opening in the barrier, but without success. The coldest weather experienced during the voyage prevailed during this period when the mercury dropped to twenty-eight degrees below zero. This freezing temperature added to the dangers of being caught in the ice and the ship was forced to retreat to Craig Harbor on the southern shore of the island where the supplies and mail for Bache Peninsula detachments were landed.

Conditions in the far North regarding the natives were reported as very satisfactory. During the trip which included calls at the principal ports in an area extending roughly 1,200 miles north and south and 750 miles east and west, contact was made with approximately 2,800 natives or more than half the Eskimo population of the Northwest Territories. The medical examinations conducted showed that the population had been singularly free from disease during 1931-32. The year was an average one for the number of pelts taken, fur bearings and wild life being fairly plentiful. There were few cases of destitution, the natives as a rule being well supplied with the necessities of life.

ARREST MAN ABOARD SHIP

Party Wanted in Vancouver For Theft Taken From Ss. Ataulia at Quebec

Montreal, Nov. 15.—An accident between two liners in the St. Lawrence River, between Montreal and Quebec, enabled police of the ancient capital to execute a telegraphic warrant for the arrest of David W. Smith, thirty-three, in connection with a connection with an alleged theft of money. On the arrival of a Vancouver police officer, Smith will be taken west. The Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, leaving Montreal Friday morning, struck in a heavy fog during the afternoon, and were obliged to remain at anchor overnight. The wanted man, who had boarded the Ataulia at Montreal, was apprehended when the liner reached Quebec for a survey of the damage.

Had the accident not occurred, the Ataulia would have arrived at Quebec on Friday evening and resumed her voyage to England the same night. Smith left Vancouver at the beginning of last week. Vancouver police got in touch with Quebec police when Smith left Vancouver, and it was later ascertained he had purchased a transatlantic ticket. When arrested he had $22.45 on his person, and he told officers that was all his money. His wife is in Vancouver.

M.P.'S DISCUSS VESSEL MISHAP

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—The grain laden freighter Bright, which sank in 115 fathoms of water after striking an iceberg in Hudson Straits on the morning of October 1, last, bobbed up in the House of Commons debate yesterday. Cameron R. McIntosh, Liberal, North Battleford, again pressed the government for publication in Blue Book form of the evidence and the various reports there having been in the House last Thursday by the member for Nelson (Mr. Stitt), Mr. McIntosh explained.

Mr. Bennett replied that the judgment of the court would be published, as promised, but he could see no reason for publishing the evidence.

On Thursday last E. M. Stitt, Conservative, Nelson, in discussing the Churchill grain route, said: "There are various reports there having been a loss of a boat this year, a boat that looked around two days before it found an iceberg. There is no question about that. That boat was deliberately sunk."

Mr. Stitt did not name the boat.

Around the Docks

Taking a parcel of Vancouver Island timber, for Australia, the United States freighter Golden Eagle is at the Ogden Point piers today. King Brothers, local shipping agents, are looking after her. She arrived here yesterday evening at 5 o'clock from Puget Sound and will leave this evening for New Westminster to complete loading before sailing for the southern Dominion. Capt. E. M. Olsen is the skipper.

IN DRYDOCK

For minor repairs, the C.F.R. coast steamer Princess Alice was floated into the Dominion Government drydock at Esquimalt yesterday afternoon. She came out this morning and this afternoon resumed service on the triangle run between Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle. Yesterday her run to Seattle was taken by the St. Princess Joan, while the St. Princess Adelaide arrived here this morning in the place of the Princess Alice. The work on the Princess Alice.

OUT SATURDAY

With a large list of passengers, including many North Americans, going to the Hawaiian Islands to spend the winter months, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan, Capt. L. D. Douglas, R.N.R., will sail from Victoria Saturday evening. She will call at Honolulu on her way across the Pacific to ports in Japan, China and the Philippines Islands.

Seattle, Nov. 15.—The steamship John Jay arrived in Seattle Sunday evening from port on the Gulf of Mexico and to-day was discharging a large shipment of corn. For her outward voyage she will load approximately 7,000,000 feet of lumber at Grays Harbor, Puget Sound, and the Columbia River. The ship had a full cargo of corn and sulphur from the Gulf of Mexico for the Pacific Coast on her present voyage.

GETS OVERHAUL

For annual winter overhaul, the ferry Cascade, which links Mill Bay and Brentwood, is on the marine slipway at the Yarrow plant, Esquimalt. She will be there all week and will return to her run early next week. During the overhaul the ferry Cascade across the inlet has been suspended.

SAILS FROM HERE

Heavily laden with British Columbia timber, including a parcel loaded here, the Japanese freighter from Seattle sailed from the Ogden Point piers yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. She took approximately 600,000 feet of lumber at this port.

NEW PORT OF CALL

Effective with the President Madison, due in Victoria from the Orient November 28, ships of the American Great Lakes fleet will call at Yokkaichi, Japan. It was announced in Victoria to-day, Yokkaichi is one of the world's largest porcelain-manufacturing centres, and in the past has been forced to lighten its cargoes down the river to Nagoya. Now, however, the river has been dredged and the big President ships will be able to go right into the port to take on cargo.

DUE THURSDAY

Sailing this afternoon at 5 o'clock from San Francisco, the Pacific Steamship Company's liner Emma Alexander is expected here at Yokkaichi, Thursday evening. She will be the first ship of the Alexander fleet sailing from Victoria on the new schedule. She will depart from this port for the south on Saturday at midnight instead of Sunday morning.

Airplanes May Aid Alaska Mercy Work

U.S. Coastguard Considering Establishment of Bases at Points in Far North

Machines Would Be Ready Night and Day, to Fly Into Interior For Sick and Injured

Seattle, Nov. 15.—Uncle Sam's mercy work, which project life and property on the Pacific and carry civilization to the Arctic rim of Alaska, soon may be linked with an auxiliary service performed by swift airplanes manned by Coast Guard aviators.

Word was received in Seattle yesterday that plans are under consideration for establishment of Coast Guard air bases in Washington, Oregon, California and Alaska similar to those on the Atlantic.

The first base will be in San Diego, adjoining the airplane station in that city, and the second on Terminal Island, San Pedro. In the extension of the bases up the Coast it has been suggested that they be established in San Francisco, Seattle, Sitka, Unalakleet and Nome. Airplanes at these bases would be ready night and day to aid in carrying sick and injured to hospitals from isolated parts of Alaska, to assist Coast Guard cutters in rescue work at sea and to do patrol duty from the Mexican border to the Arctic.

ON ATLANTIC COAST
Coast Guard airplane stations at Gloucester, Mass., Cape May, N.Y., and Miami, Fla., are now in operation and are very efficient. As the planes are equipped with wireless, a series of radio flights along the Atlantic Coast were made recently by Radio Electrician C. T. Bolt and A. G. Desautels, of the Coast Guard headquarters communication section. The purpose of the tests was to obtain data on the use of radio equipment and to study communication as affecting the operation of the Coast Guard. The performance of the radio equipment and communication with Coast Guard cutters in port and at sea was very satisfactory throughout the test flights, which covered more than 3,000 miles. An amphibian plane was used for most of the tests and was flown by Coast Guard aviator, Lieutenant J. H. M. and back up the coast to Cape May, where the tests were transferred to one of the new type F.L.B. flying boats, which was flown to Gloucester and back to New London, Conn., where the tests were completed. Radio dispatches were received and sent during the flights.

FREED FROM PAIN AT 95

What a great thing it must be for this woman, after suffering from rheumatism for many years, to be free from pain again at her age. She writes:—"I should like to tell you about it. I commenced taking Kruschen's Salt two years ago. I am completely relieved of rheumatism from which I had been a great sufferer for many years. I am now in my 95th year, and much appreciate being free from pain, which I attribute to the regular dose of Kruschen." (Mrs. A. E. S.)

If only everyone would realize that the "little daily" dose of Kruschen's is just as important to internal cleanliness as soap and water are to external cleanliness, there would surely be no more constipation, no more sluggish livers, no more rheumatism, gout or lumbago.

Kruschen is a combination of sea salts—each one is necessary to some particular organ of the body. Just what you need to permeate your system back into a healthy condition, very gently but very, very sure!
